SELECT MISCELLANY.

PATTY'S PLOT.

"Loves me better than the whole world, does he? said Patty Peronel, shaking her brown tendrilly rings of hair over a faded rose-bud and a knot of crumpled ribbon. "Oh, I dare say; but you see," gravely addressing space, "I've heard that sort of thing before. Love must be an awful epidemic now-a-days. And all the world's a lottery; and I, for one, don't want to draw a blank. O dear, dear! how I wish I could really see into a man's heart! How I wish I had any means of ascertaining whether Ralph Penrhyn really cares for me, or whether he has heard of Uncle Hutchinson's $10,000.—O dear me!" and Patty sighed a sigh deep enough to stir all the red cinnamon roses that are nodding their turbaned crests at the casement.

And then she jumped up, and went about her business.

Which chanced to be girl hunting just then. For Mrs. Maurice Peronel, Patty's cousin, was chronically in the suds, so to speak, on the domestic service question, and our Patty knew the insides of every Intelligence office in town.

"It's a cook this time, is it, Bessie?" said she.

"A cook," said Bessie. "O, Patty, Patty, don't get married and go to housekeeping." "I don't know but what you're right," Patty assented reflectively. And away she went to the Intelligence office.

It was crowded, on this hot July day, with the miscellaneous assemblage of forlorn feminity who are always seeking situations, and like the lover in the "Mistletoe Bough," "find them not." Patty looked round dubiously. She was somewhat of a physiognomist, and she did not exactly like the looks of the raw material wherewith she was surrounded.

"I had better bide my time a little," she thought, and down she nestled into the corner of a prodigious sofa, to wait with what patience she might.

As she seated herself, the shrill piping voice of an old lady beyond made silence vocal.

"You won't do for me," said she. "No followers—that's my rule. My kitchen ain't a place for all the loafin' fellers in town to smoke in. Ask everybody in Darlingville, if you want to know what kind of a housekeeper Rachel Penrhyn is. Everybody in Darlingville knows me. No followers, no ribbons, and no hoop skirts."

"I guess, then, ma'am, you won't do for me," said the Milesian damsel, with an indignant toss of her jockey-hatted head; "I don't go nowheres I can't have my young man come and see me of a Saturday night."

Patty Peronel listened with mischievously sparkling eyes and cherry cheeks. This, then, was the eccentric Aunt Rachel, of whom Ralph had told her—the grim old spinster who "kept house" all by herself, in the quaint village of Darlingville, where the elms lined the streets like green-kirtled sentinels, and everybody went to bed at half-past nine o'clock.

Very sudden resolves will sometimes rush through our brains, lightning express fashion, in a short space of time, and almost before the shrill tones of Miss Rachel's falsetto voice had ceased to vibrate on the air, Patty Peronel stood dipping odd little courtesies before her.

"If you please, ma'am, would I suit?"

Miss Rachel glared through her moon shaped spectacle glasses at the trim figure robed in sober gray.

"You—child!" quoth she. "Why, you're such a chit of a thing."

"I am nineteen, ma'am!"

"What can you do?"

"A little of everything, ma'am" Patty answered demurely.

"What's your name?"

"Martha, ma'am, please."

Apparently the cross-examination that followed was satisfactory to Miss Rachel Penrhyn, for she finally told Patty she might "come and try" at seven dollars a month.

"I may go home for my clothes, ma'am?" said Patty, with drooping eyelids and hands folded.

"Yes; but be sure you meet me at the railroad at four precisely."

Patty promised, and ran home to Mrs. Peronel.

"Where's my girl?" demanded the matron.

"I haven't got any. I'm a girl myself, Bessie—at seven dollars a month, and—no followers!"

"What under the sun do you mean?"

And Patty explained.

"Don't scold, Bessie—now don't, that's a darling. I'm Caliph Aaroun Alraschid in disguise, that's all. It will be such fun! Where's my gingham dress, and the little linen collars, and the big bib aprons? For my bubble would burst altogether if I shouldn't meet Aunt Rachel at the station at four o'clock precisely."

What a change it was, from the swarming city streets, radiating scintillations of heat from every curbstone, to old Penrhyn home, where century old elms formed a green canopy of shade, and the clove-pinks and old fashioned blue-bells blossomed along the borders. And "Martha," the new maid, settled into the grooves at once, as if she had lived all her life under Aunt Rachel's roof-tree.

"I believe I am going to like this," said Aunt Rachel. "But then, of course, a new broom sweeps clean; and I'm 'most afraid to believe in any one, since Keturah Smith experienced religion and ran away with my silver sugar-basin!"

"This is Mr. Ralph's room, is it?" said Martha, with her hands in her ruffled pockets, as she stood regarding the apartment that had just been opened to be dusted and aired.

"Yes, this is my nephew's room," said the old lady. "He comes out once in a while, and I always keep it ready for him. I've no family of my own, you see, and Ralph seems very near to me."

"Dear me!" said Martha, "what a lot of photographs over the mantle."

Miss Rachel nodded.

"That middle one—it looks a little like you, Martha, I declare—"

"Does it?" lisped Martha, innocently, as she looked into her own smiling, saucy eyes, under a fringe of crepe hair.

"It's my nephew's sweetheart," went on the garrulous old lady, "the gal that he loves the best in all the world."

"Are they engaged?" Martha ventured to ask, the tell-tale roses dyeing her cheek as she gently spoke.

"Well, no, not exactly. I guess she's rather pretty, but she's got nothing of her own, you see; an' there's Almira Playfair—the one on the left-hand edge of the chimney—"

"The one with the twisted nose?" roguishly asked Martha.

"Her nose may be a little to one side," severely remonstrated Miss Rachel; but handsome is as handsome does, and Almira has thirty thousand dollars in the bank."

"My!" cried Martha, opening her eyes wide. "Thirty thousand dollars, ma'am! I should think Mr. Ralph would marry her at once."

"So he ought," said Miss Rachel, rubbing her spectacle glasses vehemently. "She'd have him in a minute—so all the neighbors say. But he's just possessed in love with that little Peronel girl. He'd rather work for a crust a day, with her to share it, he says, than to mary Almira Playfair with all her money."

"That is noble of him," cried Martha with sparkling eyes. "I respect him for it. I—I mean I should respect him for it if—"

"Well, I don't see what it is to you one way or the other," tartly broke in Miss Rachel. "Just give the room a good dusting, that's all I ask of you, for as like as not Ralph will be here to-night."

"To-night," cried Martha, aghast.

"Yes, to-night. Why shouldn't he?"

That was just what the little serving damsel could not answer.

"I must go away this very evening," she thought to herself as she polished away at the claw-footed old mahogany table. "Because if he should come and find me here—Oh, good gracious."

She dropped her duster in dismay, for there stood Ralph Penrhyn before her, with all his six feet of altitude, his brown eyes twinkling mischievously beneath their long lashes.

"Patty," he cried, "is this the story of Cinderella and the Little Glass Slipper?"

"No," she answered, coloring like a whole garden of roses. "Its the story of a naughty little girl who could not be satisfied without finding out whether—"

"Whether Ralph Penrhyn really loved her or not," he finished the hesitating sentence. "Well, what do [illegible] Rachel thought [illegible] when she came in, and found her nephew and Martha the housemaid whispering behind the muslin curtains. I know what I should have thought—that a wedding was very eminent.

So it was; and Aunt Rachel consoled herself that after all ten thousand dollars was a very snug little fortune.—Ledger.

LOVE STORY OF A PRESIDENT.

Ex-Governor Wise, of Virginia, in his recently published and very clever volume, entitled "Seven Decades of the Union," gives an account of President Tyler's second marriage that is very entertaining. Mr. Tyler became a widower while he was President, losing a wife who was a very noble woman, a member of the well known family of Christian, in the Old Dominion. He was a domestic man, and a pure man, and a second marriage is the most natural thing in the world when a man has been happy in a first marriage; but then it is thought that a widower should marry a lady of experience not unlike his own. Mr. Wise says that he was in Mr. Tyler's coach, taking a drive with him, in March, 1844, when he soon discovered that his friend would talk only of love and of ladies.

"We had always heard," said Mr. Wise, "that an old fool is the worst of fools in love-sickness, and he showed the usual signs of its contortions to hideous shapes of seeming. He got it out at last that he thought of marriage, and wanted to know our opinion on the subject. 'Well, of course, you have sought and found out some honored dame of dignity, who can bring grace to the White House and add to your domestic comfort?' 'Oh, no dame, but a sweet damsel.' 'And who, pray, of damsel degree, could or should an old President win?' He told us; and we uttered our astonishment by asking: 'Have you really won her?' He replied: 'Yes; and why should I not?' We answered that he was too far advanced in life to be imprudent in a love scrape. 'How imprudent?' he asked. 'Very easily; you are not only past the middle age, (he was then fifty four,) but you are President of the United States, and that is a dazzling dignity, which may charm a damsel more than the man she marries.' 'Pooh!' he cried, chuckling, 'why, my dear sir, I am just full in my prime!' 'Ah, but has John Y. Mason never told you about an old friend of his, on the south side of the James, rich and full of acres, calling his African waiter, Toney, into council upon the topic of marrying a miss in her teens? Toney shook his head: 'Massa, you tink you can stand dat?' 'Yes, Toney; why not? She is so sweet, so beautiful, that she would make me rise from a bed of illness and weakness to woo her for a bride; but I am yet strong, and I can now, as well as ever I could, make her happy.' 'Yes; but, massa,' said Toney, 'you is now in your prime, dat's true; but when she is in her prime, where den, massa, will your prime be?'"

He laughed heartily at Toney's philosophical observation; but afterward, in seriousness, said that he longed for a renewal of his domestic life, and had been fairly caught by the flame of Miss Gardiner. We remonstrated that his life was renewed in his children; that he had daughters, lovely daughters, full of grace, fit to do the honors of the White House, and some of them were the elders of his intended. What if family dissent should make domestic jars, and his latter days be troubled? He had, he said, always been too tender to the pledges of his past love for them ever to withhold from him their filial confidence, or deny to him his parental authority to judge and act for his own happiness. We saw the game was up, and then said: "We see you are bent upon your last love, with or without counsel, and you have ever been too lucky for us now to doubt or distrust your fate.—You are going to marry the damsel, and we are not foolish enough to make two enemies by opposing the passion of the wooer and the won.'

The marriage took place on the 26th of June, 1844, President Tyler being then in his fifty-fifth year, and the bride, Miss Julia Gardiner, about twenty, and whom we remember being much spoken of as a beautiful girl, and a Washington belle of those long gone days. She was a New York lady, of good family, as the phrase is, and descended, as we have heard, from old Lyon Gardiner, who flourished in the Colonial age, and who gave his name to Gardiner's Bay and Gardiner's Island, on and in Long Island Sound. The marriage proved a very happy one, and Mrs Tyler, who has survived her husband more than ten years, is not yet old. Mr. Tyler, some years after the marriage, said to Mr. Wise, when the latter noted that his friend kept "a double-seated, four-wheeled wicker carriage for small children"—"Yes, you see how right I was; it was no vain boast when I told you I was in my prime. I have a houseful of goodly babies budding around me; and if you go up with me to Sherwood, I will show you how bountifully and rapidly I have been blessed. They are all so near in age that they are like stair steps, and the two youngest are so much babies alike that each requires the nurse's coach, and we have to have one with two seats!"

So that the marriage turned out well, despite the fact that the gentleman was old enough to be the lady's grandfather; and we are glad of it, for Mr. Tyler had so much injustice done him as a public man, that he was entitled to compensation in his private life.

ROMANTIC.

A Condemned Murderer Changes Clothes with His Wife and Escapes.

[Hendersonville, N. C., (Oct 25) Correspondence of the New York Herald.]

Over five thousand people were assembled here to-day for the purpose of witnessing the execution of Martin Baynard, one of the murderers of Silas Weston and his three children, but they were doomed to be wofully disappointed. It will be remembered that two criminals have already been executed for this crime. Martin Baynard was also to have suffered the extreme penalty of the law when the other two were hanged, but he was respited from time to time, to be used as a witness against the elder Bayard and another, who were also implicated in this terrible murder, under a statute of this State which provides that a condemned felon can testify as a witness against other parties to the crime. All preparations were made, the scaffold was in readiness, and the crowd had been arriving from all quarters for several days to witness the tragedy. During his imprisonment the wife of the condemned man was faithful, constant and devoted in her attendance upon him. A day did not pass that she was not in his cell for several hours, and, at the last moment, with a heroism worthy of a more noble cause, she saved him from an ignominious death upon the scaffold. The night that was to have been the last of Baynard's earthly existence had arrived, and upon the earnest, tearful and sorrowful entreaty of his wife, the jailer compassionately allowed her to pass the few remaining hours of his life with him in his cell. Morning broke clear and bright, and already the assembled multitude were [illegible], eagerly awaiting the arrival of the hour. About six a. m. the woman came to the jail door to be let out, with her bonnet drawn down over her face and a handkerchief pressed over her mouth, through which her stifled broken sobs burst as the jailer passed her through the outer door of the prison. She walked slowly off with a feeble gait, bowed figure, and wailing piteously, giving vent to her great grief, and was soon lost to the sight of the gaping guards and morbidly curious spectators. Breakfast time came at eight o'clock, and the confident and compassionate jailer, with a meal—the last the doomed man was to have eaten—comprised entirely of tempting delicacies, repaired to the cell. The bars were removed, the heavy iron door was swung back, and the jailer entered, when a sight that made him shake like an aspen leaf met his gaze. In the further end of the cell, instead of the condemned man, crouched up in the corner was a woman in her night clothes. The plates and dishes with the breakfast fell from the jailer's hands to the floor, and were broken in fragments. He tried to speak, but could find no words for utterance, and, as he stood in actual despair, the crouching figure rose, and in the tones of a woman who thinks she has done a praiseworthy action, said, "Well, as Martin is gone, I reckon I had better eat the breakfast," and she forthwith began picking up the scattered portions of the meal. Baynard had escaped in his wife's clothes, and was by this time far beyond the reach of the county officers. The Sheriff, as soon as apprised of the circumstances, set out in pursuit of the criminal with a posse, but in vain, for, after scouring the country for miles, they returned without their prisoner. The assembled crowd gave expression to their chagrin in various ways, none the least of which was an anxious desire on their part to see the woman hanged in the place of her husband; and, indeed, many of them were firm in the impression that such would be the case. Having come to see "a hanging," they were not particular as to who the victim was, whether guilty or innocent, as long as their morbid curiosity was gratified. It is now believed that Baynard will not ever be recaptured.

MORMONS BOUND FOR JERUSALEM.

Brigham Young Sends His Apostles [illegible] Zion.

While all the American world is busy with the great election the Mormons are not idle. People in Salt Lake City never sit down to think when there is any possibility of working and doing. Brigham Young is as lively as ever. He never sleeps. Ordinary people have time for repose, but the "Prophet of the Lord" must be ever on the qui vive. While all the world was busy considering whether Grant or Greeley would turn the scale of American politics, the great Mormon Prophet had no time to bestow upon such trifling affairs, but fixed his eyes to the far distant East. Jerusalem the grand old city which Abraham visited, which Devin so successfully besieged, which became the "Zion" of sacred song, the glory of the crusaders of old and the prototype of everlasting salvation to the Christian of modern days, would no doubt have been shorn of half its glory if the gospel of the Mormons, as taught by Brigham Young, had not been preached within her walls. Brigham accordingly sent a mission, and that mission left New York city Thursday.

To the "Gentile" world—and every one in Utah is a Gentile, whether Jew or Christian—such a mission must seem quite extraordinary. Indeed to any one who has any knowledge of the history of the past such an event is significant. Most people either despise the Mormons or pity them as ridiculous enthusiasts. But facts are stubborn things. One thousand years after the birth of Him the treading of whose sacred feet, the Bard of Avon says, sanctified the hills and dales of Palestine, all the nations of Christendom, aroused by the voice of Peter the Hermit, poured forth in thousands and tens of thousands to rescue the Holy Land from the power of the infidel. When the great Papal Hierarch preached the first Crusade historians tell that as the unnumbered throng around him shouted, "It is the voice of God! the voice of God!" the echoes of that tumult of applause were heard from east and west, from south to north, in the palace of the King and in the cot of the peasant—everywhere the impulse of the heart moved the tongue to say, "God wills it."

The days of chivalry are past. The Crusades accomplished their work; but they and their work are now things of a bygone age. But, unromantic as the present era is—plain, business like, prosaic, as every one knows it—there is still a romance which lingers about the everyday things of life which they who run may read if they list, but which the more casual observer could never discover. The Mormon mission to Palestine is an example in point.

There has been lately a grand movement among the Mormons. Brigham Young has at last awakened to the fact that, whether he lives or dies, the world will certainly "go on," but at the same time he realized the need of keeping up the religious zeal of the Saints, and also of carrying out certain private schemes of his own. The result was—the mission to Jerusalem. Let any one fancy going to Jerusalem! The Prophet has an apostle on hand who is rebellious, or a high priest who does not see things exactly as he ought to do, or an elder who is troublesome, what can be done? Send him upon a mission, by all means—and upon a mission he is sent.

Such, though not expressed in words, is the programme of the modern Saints.

But above all things, let us see the missionaries. Among the most noted of them is "George A."—as he is called in Utah—who is anything but one of the "learned kind." A wicked apostate said once that if George A. tumbled into the nether regions he would not only set all the uncomfortable place on fire, but grease the wheels of all who came thither.

George A. is not only a relative of "Joseph," the founder of Mormonism, but also the historian of the Church. As such he goes out to the Holy Land. With him and the company Miss Eliza Roxy Snow goes. George A. is a stout, jolly looking fellow, but Miss Snow bears upon her face the shadow of sorrow. She was the spiritual wife of "Joseph," and since, by proxy, she has been the "wife" of Brigham Young. She is a woman of intellect, and probably sought with an uneducated mind amid the wonderful chaos Mormon revelation for a foundation and truth which Mormonism could never give. She now goes with the pilgrims to ancient Zion in the hope of their turning her harp of poesy if its chords be not overstrung. Childless by "The Prophet" and by his successor, she looks like the wierd sisters of the Bard of Avon, for the fulfilment of her vaticination of an age yet to come.

But the poetess goes not alone. With her are others equally zealous. The fat and heavy George A., six feet in hight, who never "bothered" any one, and who was always the great, harmless "thing" [illegible] Brigham Young's nephew. Nothing is [illegible] Mormons than the bond of brotherhood. Others besides these are on their way to Europe. They will win their way, but they will, as their minds expand by contact with the world, also learn a lesson. The object of Brigham Young, probably, is to resuscitate Mormonism in Utah, and that is why he sends this mission to Palestine. Years ago George J. Adams went to Joppa, but he failed. Brigham Young, perhaps, wants to found a colony in Palestine in case America rejects him.

MANSARD ROOFS.

The Boston Fire and Its Lesson.

The story of the Boston fire is as simple as it is startling. The fire originated in the upper part of a five-story granite building occupying several lots, and covered by a Mansard roof. The flames burst from the rear [illegible] the neighboring building, and caught the roofs. They then leaped across two streets in different directions, and laid hold on the ornaments, cornices and roofs of the opposite buildings. The wind was gentle at first, but with the progress of the flames, vast, irregular currents arose and bore the fire both north and east. The work of destruction was then but a question of time. It continued as it began, until seventy acres of land had been traversed and nearly a hundred millions' worth of property burned. Then it was checked, as prairie fires are, by laying waste an area in its pathway.

It is difficult to think of any district, under any circumstances, in any part of the country, says the New York Times, that could be more reasonably regarded as safe from fire than was the vicinity of Kingston and Summer streets, Boston, on Saturday evening. It was occupied almost exclusively by new buildings recently erected at great cost, and presumably guarded by all the precaution known to the builders of our day. The accidental fire which began there was quickly met by a well organized fire department, commanding liberal supplies of water. There was no high wind to spread it, and the adjacent buildings were not, as in Chicago, made unusually dry by long drouth. Are we to infer, then, that all the modern safeguards are of no avail, and that our dwellings and our warehouses are at the mercy of any conflagration which chance may give rise to?

This would be an extreme conclusion, but it would not be wholly destitute of foundation. Engineers have a wise maxim, that the strength of a structure is the strength of its weakest part, and, though our stone walls and iron floors and beams are well directed toward certain sources of danger, they are worth nothing where fire finds a great mass of inflammable material to start it, and then leaps from point to point, invited by combustible cornices, by ornaments easily penetrated, and by Mansard roofs of thinly covered wood.

Given these conditions, and Boston teaches us that the fire advances in the air, far above the reach of ordinary fire extinguishing apparatus, finding food for itself on the level at which it begins, and stopping only when a destructive agency mightier and more swift than itself opposes to it an area already devastated. Boston, helpless where it believed itself safest, and fighting in vain, with the combined aid of a dozen adjacent cities, a conflagration which would have been believed impossible had it not been so terribly real, forces this lesson upon us with a simplicity and directness which we cannot evade or ignore.

Idle Daughters.

It is a most painful spectacle in families where the mother is the drudge, to see daughters elegantly dressed, reclining at their ease, with their music, their drawing, their fancy work, and never dreaming of their responsibilities; but as a necessary consequence of a neglect of duty, growing weary of their useless lives, lay hold of every newly invented stimulant to rouse their drooping energies, and blame their fate, when they dare not blame their God, for having placed them where they are. These individuals often tell you, with the air of affected compassion (for who can believe it real?) that poor dear mamma is working herself to death; yet no sooner do you propose that they should assist her than they declare she is quite in her element—in short, that she never would be happy if she only had half so much to do.

☞ "O, that I were beautiful!" is the unspoken wish of thousands of women to whom nature has denied the charm of a pure, fresh, transparent complexion. To gratify this wish Hagan's Magnolia Balm was introduced. The cosmetics of the day had been pronounced poisonous by the most distinguished chemists, and it was also found that their ultimate effect was to wither the skin as well as to paralize the external nerves. The ladies hailed with delight the advent of a healthful, herbal and floral preparation capable of imparting to their faces, necks and arms a porcelian smoothness and a tinge like that of the finest oriental pearl. They soon discovered that it was "a new thing under the sun," incomparable and unapproachable. Unquestionably the Magnolia Balm has been the great toilet success of the present century.

Catarrhal Bronchitis.

Catarrh, in which the lining of the nose and passages which lead into the lungs is a common infirmity, and by most persons is readily understood, at least so far as to be able to distinguish the nature and character of the disease.

When it descends into the bronchial tubes, and follows them in their minute ramifications throughout the lungs, it usually receives the plain name bronchitis, and unless cured may end, and often does end, in fearful pulmonary disaster. When it confines itself to the membrane of the nose and upper part of the throat it passes by the name of catarrh, which name, however, is hardly sufficiently significant to designate the character of the disease. By catarrhal bronchitis, therefore, I mean that the upper part of the mucous membrane lining of the nose is affected, & that it extends downwards and affects the lining of the bronchial tubes which ramify the lungs. Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure is a specific for this disease, as far as any one medicine can be a specific. Heal the bronchial tubes by making good blood, which Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure will enable the system to do, and the disease will soon be eradicated. Sold at Dr. Keyser's, 167 Liberty street, Pittsqurgh, $1.50 per bottle, or 4 for $5.

The Beaver Argus.

J. WEYAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

Beaver, Pa., November 20, 1872.

THE talk that Greeley is the worst beaten man that was ever a candidate for President is all bosh. In 1832 Henry Clay had but 49 electoral votes. In 1840, Van Buren had but 60 votes. In 1852, Scott had 42 votes. In 1864, McClellan had 21 votes and in 1868, Seymour had 80 being almost the same number that Greeley received at the late election.

THE Liberal Republicans of Ohio held a meeting at Cincinnati on Saturday and resolved to take steps to organize the "Liberal party." Judge Stallo, Stanley Matthews, Judge Hoadley, and others who refused to support Greeley and advocated the re-election of Grant in preference, attended the meeting and participated in its deliberations. The Cincinnati Platform, with the exception of the tariff plank, was re-affirmed. Revenue Reform was substituted for the Cincinnati resolution on the tariff.

UNDER the new Internal Revenue law the force of Assessors and Collectors, now numbering 230 of each class is to be reduced to 80 by the 1st of January next, and Commissioner Douglass will soon begin the work of consolidating districts in order to make the reductions. In some States there will be but one or two Collectors assigned, but in the larger States and densely populated cities there will be a sufficient force to do the work without inconvenience to business interests. An immense pressure is being exerted in favor of various incumbents.

IF any person is anxious to know how it "pays" to act as a "tool" for two or three unscrupulous men at the county seat, he is respectfully referred to a couple of men in Beaver Falls, a brace or so in Beaver, one or two in New Brighton, two or three in Industry and several more in New Sewickley township. These latter have some experience, and "know how it is themselves." They will very likely make answer that a few dollars in hand, a dinner or two and a glass of old Monongahela thrown in, do not compensate for integrity thrown away and a character utterly ruined. Experience is a dear school, but it seems that fools will learn in no other.

A MEETING of the Democratic and Liberal State committees of Ohio, took place at Columbus on the 15th inst. After a free and full consultation they agreed to unite and act together in the future. The subject of forming a new organization and adopting a new party name was also discussed, but action on these questions was deferred for the present. A sub-committee, consisting of General Thomas Ewing, Senator Thurman, General Brinkerhoff and General Deshler, was selected to issue an address to the people of Ohio. The address has been published and appeals to all anti-administration men to keep in line and await future developments.

TEN or twelve years ago the [illegible] offices. Exceptions to this rule were rarely found. But where are we now? Upright and honest men are generally brushed aside with little or no ceremony, and those who can be used to accomplish some base purpose, are preferred, and taken in their stead. At this rate of demoralization where will we be ten or twelve years hence?—Let those who believe in old-fashioned honesty on the part of our public servants give this aspect of politics some attention in the near future.

A TELEGRAPHIC dispatch from Montgomery, Alabama, dated Nov. 17th says:

Messrs. Morgan, Kimbro and McNeil, Conservatives, who have certificates of election as members of the Legislature, were arrested by the United States Deputy Marshal to-day between Selma and Uniontown. It is reported that the Marshal is to take them to Mobile. The Marshal said that he had instructions not to take bail. The offense charged is some violation of the election law. This will make the political complexion of the Legislature doubtful on organization, as the carrying of the prisoners to Mobile will involve several days' delay. The Liberals and Conservatives would have a majority in the House if the arrested parties were allowed to take their seats. The Legislature meets to-morrow.

JAMES M. ALLEN, alias "Specks," where are you? Nearly every political knave in the State is now looking after and expecting an official position of some kind or other, and why not enter the arena yourself and make an effort to obtain as fat a place as any of them? The electors of the State, in electing a Governor and Auditor General this fall, deliberately lowered the standard of official qualification, and if corrupt men are henceforth to be our public officers, we fail to see why you should not have an equal chance with all the others.—Leave your hiding place, therefore; put in an appearance at Harrisburg soon; file your claim, "come down" with a little of the root of all evil, and we will wager a hat or so, that you will get what you ask for; especially if you threaten, on a disposition of refusal, to proclaim at whose instance and request you undertook to stuff ballot-boxes at the late State election.

GENERAL CAMERON, Governor elect Hartranft and a number of other Pennsylvania politicians are said to have met with a severe rebuke from President Grant on last Friday. They went to Washington to secure the appointment of one of their Philadelphia tools, a Mr. Trueman, as Post-master of that place, but the President is said to have dismissed them with the following speech:

GENTLEMAN:—I do not well see how it would be possible for me to set aside the rules and regulations of the Civil Service Commission. What have we here? There are two candidates presented, both Republicans. One of them, Mr. Fairman, has been an employee of the Philadelphia Post-office for some time, and I am fully satisfied he is fully competent to discharge the duties of post-master. If I were disposed to set aside the Civil Service rules and go outside, I might appoint Mr. Trueman, but I cannot conscientiously do this.

Whereupon Cameron, Hartranft &Co., left in high dudgeon. If all this occurred as reported, we will believe that Grant "is himself again," and that the turning over of a new leaf has been resolved upon.

AN unsophisticated New England youngster, some years ago, left the paternal mansion, and by and by pulled up in one of the western States. Having been there for some time, and observing matters pretty closely, he finally became quite anxious to have the old people come west too, and accordingly wrote his sire the following touching appeal:

"DEAR DADDY: Sell off everything you have and move out here. They elect all-fired mean men to office in this State. Come right off. From your dutiful son." JOHN.

Now, we do not intend to invite "mean men" from other States into Pennsylvania in order to obtain official positions for themselves, but we do think that now is the time for all venal and irresponsible men in our own State, to come forward and make application for all the positions there are to fill. Many of them, we are able to say, are already doing this, and our purpose now is to get them all off on an even start, so that one will have no advantage over another.

A majority of the voters of Pennsylvania deliberately decided at the October election that they preferred a dishonest to an honest man for Governor, and the political rogues of the State having caught the inspiration of the Gubernatorial verdict, are now popping up their heads everywhere and demanding the same recognition for themselves that was accorded to General Hartranft. No one can blame them for this, for an overwhelming majority of the people themselves have in effect told them that honesty should not, and dishonesty should be rewarded. We repeat, then, that now is the time for political villains to move to the front. Popular sentiment is in their favor, and any official places they can get will clearly be sanctioned by it. Gentlemen! enter the lists. The spoils are yours, but be careful you work no detriment to the old adage, that "there is honor among thieves."

Seriously, though, is not the situation alarming? Look at the character of the men all over the State who are now clamoring for positions of honor and profit. Scarcely any of them could get credit for $20 in a country store, or security to settle up an insignificant estate. The example furnished in October in voting for Hartranft and Allen, will, in due course of time, return to plague those who set it. Of that we are quite sure.

THE members elect of the Constitutional Convention met at Harrisburg on the 12 inst., and soon after elected the Hon. W. M. Meredith as permanent President of the Convention.

The second day's proceedings were spicy, on account of the Democrats wanting part of the offices, and the Republicans being in the majority, claiming all.

A resolution was passed that the sessions of the convention shall be held in Philadelphia, after Jan. 1st, 1873.

After much somewhat angry discussion the following officers—all Re- [illegible]

1st Assistant Clerk, Lucius D. Rogers, of McKean.

2nd Assistant Clerk, A. D. Harlan, of Chester.

Sergeant-at-Arms, James Onslow, of Allegheny.

Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, Cassius Brown, colored, of Dauphin.

Doorkeeper, Clem Evans, of Schuylkill.

Assistant Doorkeeper, Frank Bentley, of Washington.

Postmaster, Henry P. Price, of Philadelphia.

Assistant Postmaster, B. Frank Major, of Philadelphia.

Transcribing Clerks, John T. Linton, Philadelphia, and A. T. Parker, of Lycoming.

On the final vote President Meredith R. and Hugh N. McAllister, R. of Bellefonte, voted with the Democrats, making the vote stand 67 Republicans to 66 Democrats.

If we are to believe the Harrisburg correspondent of the Pittsburgh Post, neither our own townsman, nor any other of the minor officers, are likely to reflect much credit on the Convention. He says:

But what disgusts me entirely is the kind of people they have forced upon the Convention for officers. They gave Onslow a negro for Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, doubtless because O. had the gout, and needed a good servant; but that was nothing to the Chief clerk they appointed. He is an incapable named Imbrie from Beaver county. He may be able to read fine print without spelling more than half the words, but as for "writing hand," the poor man can scarcely make it out at all; and then his voice is not such a one as that of the veteran Smull, whose good reading has made his fortune. Smull assisted poor Imbrie for a little while at the request of the convention, but soon left the new clerk to his fate.

I can think of but one motive the ring could have for putting such an imbecile as Imbrie in the clerk's chair. They want to torture the President, Mr. Meredith, who is not of their choosing, in the hope that he will retire in disgust. But the fine old man has too much blood in him for that, and he manages his business admirably in despite of Imbrie. The Ring's choice of officers was simply abominable.

SOLICITOR GENERAL BAGSTOW tendered his resignation to the President on the 14th. The President accepted the resignation on the 15th, and wrote the retiring officer a complimentary letter.

NEW YORK city was startled with another horrible tragedy on last Monday. A Mrs. King sued her husband—James D. King, a lawyer of that city—for a divorce. In the hearing of the case a Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil were witnesses for Mrs King. After leaving the witnesses stand, O'Neil was followed down the stairs by King, and while on the landing the latter put three pistol balls into O'Neil's body. O'Neil died soon afterwards. King was at once taken into custody, and at last accounts, fears were entertained that a mob would break into his prison and execute summary vengeance upon the murderer.

HERE AND THERE.

Down in Arkansas a man was lately sentenced to be hanged, but all the carpenters in the neighborhood refused to build the scaffold. As the condemned man was a carpenter himself by trade, the sheriff tried to induce him to put up the gallows, but he steadfastly declared he'd be hanged if he did.

—This is the way they do up an Enoch Arden romance in Oshkosh, Wis.: The western Arden did not come back and gaze through the window at the felicity of the reconstructed household and then go into the green and yellow melancholy business; not any. He kicked the new husband out, sorted over the children and sent his brats after him, and then, after thrashing his wife, settled down into a peaceful and happy head of the family.

—Hon. Horatio Seymour made a speech a few days before the recent election, in which he said:

"FELLOW CITIZENS—In this election the sharp discussions about candidates have turned away the public mind from more important questions involved in its results. Compared with these the candidates are mere incidents of the contest. It involves the formation of a great party, which is hereafter to direct the affairs of our country. The first great work to be done is to lay its foundation. In this more progress has been made than we had a right to expect.

—It is rumored in army circles that Brigadier Gen. O. O. Howard will be promoted to the grade of Major-General, vice Meade, deceased, and will be retired immediately, with the full grade of Major General, on account of long and faithful service and wounds received therein. The retirement of Gen. Howard will leave a vacancy in the list of Major-Generals, which, we learn, will probably be filled by the promotion of Gen. Terry or Gen. Canby, and thus reduce the number of Brigadier Generals to six.

—The horse epidemic has had one good result—people have discovered that legs were made to walk with. The number of women who have found they can go on shopping expeditions without a carriage, and of men who know that they can reach their places of business without a horse car, has been materially increased. There is a great deal of pedestrian ability in this country which has never been developed. Nobody can understand how quickly he can get from one point to another on his own legs, until he tries; and that cannot be considered altogether a misfortune which compels him to make the trial.

—A good deal has been said about an American "lady dentist" who is pulling and filling the teeth of the inhabitants of Berlin. She has been supposed the sex's pioneer in this line of business but according to The British Journal of Dentistry, there were, as long ago as 1859, seventeen female practitioners of dentistry in England and Wales. It has now been satisfactorily demonstrated that no branch of human industry is reserved for and sacred to the horrid [illegible] removed, and the gates wide open, it remains to be determined how many women will enter the fresh fields and pastures new.

—Colonel Titus Rice, who years ago was a prominent citizen of Richmond, and colonel of the 179th Virginia militia regiment, committed suicide at Fortress Monroe on Friday night, by shooting himself through the head with a rifle. For many years before the war the colonel became a cripple from rheumatism, and a bankrupt in business, selling out to the late John McKiel. He remained about Richmond until the breaking out of the war, when he went to Fortress Monroe, and engaged his services to the Federal fleet as a pilot on James river, which duty he was fully competent to do from his long familiarity with the river. He had been living since the war in an old barge at Fortress Monroe, and was regarded as eccentric. He was a native of Connecticut, and seventy years old.

—We have a piece of gossip from Washington, that, true or false is interesting enough. Among the Comanches visiting the Capital is a young fellow who fell in love at first sight with the young daughter of a resident millionaire. And, strange to say, his passion was reciprocated. They even rode out together, in her father's carriage, and when those in charge of her strictly forbade any further exhibitions of such bad taste on her part, she frankly declared her intention to wed the Comanche. Of course the matter was too serious not to receive attention. On the one side the young Indian, with plenty of money, declared he would not leave without the girl of his love; on the other was the girl, equally head-strong. The Indian Commissioner could not mend matters, although appealed to. In this dilemma, a trip to Europe for the girl was decided on. What the Indian will do about it will be found in the next chapter when it comes.

—An amiable Pennsylvania gentleman, married to his second wife, lately held a matrimonial conversation of a peppery nature with that lady. Inasmuch as her rhetorical powers were infinitely finer and more varied than his, she presently scattered the opposing force in dismay. He was about to retire to solitude, therein to "suck the sweets of sweet philosophy," when he was suddenly struck by that mental brickbat popularly known as a happy thought. He turned like the trampled worm and informed the victorious trampler that there was one thing anyway she was not nearly so good looking as his first! What could a poor, abused creature do but burst into rivers of tears, and defy him to the proof? As there were no relics of departed beauty about the house in the shape of photographs or preternatural paintings, the desperate man paused one humiliating instant, when another brickbat came at him and he was happy. He remembered that an excellent portrait of his first had been deposited with her in the silent tomb. Thither he rushed, there he dug with a triumphant spade, and thence he carried the convincing picture. Crushed to the earth, his second rose again only to confess that his blood curdling assertion was too, too true.

—We have, it appears, one representative at least abroad who understands the dignity of our position and his own. The Manchester (England) Guardian gives us an account of the recent troubles of a Colonel Davies, who honors Cardiff by representing the United States as Consul at that port. Davies, it seems, bought an estate near the town, and speedily got into a squabble with a neighboring farmer Bodkins, concerning the use of a path or gate, which wound up triumphantly for the Colonel with his giving the Englishman a tremendous thrashing. He was arrested and brought before the County Court on a charge of assault and battery, and defended himself. It was not he, Davies, who was aggrieved, he claimed, when the fellow pushed his way through the gate, but the majesty of the forty millions of people whom he represented; it was the great American nation to whom Bodkins had used disrespectful language, and "in the name of that nation," declared the Colonel, "under the shadow of that broad and beautiful flag, I struck him, in the cause of freedom!" The speech was "received with profound emotion," though The Guardian fails to inform us of what kind, and the case was held over for consideration, the Cardiff Dogberries no doubt finding the introduction of forty millions of freemen into the case too heavy a matter for sudden handling.

A NEW POLITICAL PARTY.

Meeting of the Ohio Democratic and Liberal Republican State Central Committees—An Address to the Citizens of Ohio—The Proposed Liberal Party.

A special consultation meeting of Democrats and Liberal Republicans of Ohio was held at Columbus yesterday. The Liberals, about forty in number, met separately and adopted resolutions declaring that in their opinion it was desirable that a consolidation of all the elements favoring the leading principles enunciated by the Cincinnati platform should be effected, and that until such consolidation is effected the Liberal organization should be maintained and perfected; that the next Liberal State Convention should declare squarely in favor of tariff for revenue only, and invite all persons, without regard to former political associations, to unite with them; recommending that after the next Convention the name of "Liberal Republican," as a party name, should be dropped, and that of the "Liberal" party be adopted; asking all organizations which have thus far co-operated with the Liberal Republicans to abandon the old party name, with a view to a more perfect union under the name of "Liberal;" that as a party they are opposed to all special legislation or special privileges, believing that the equal rights of all should be the guiding principle in all the ramifications of the Government, and that great care should be exercised in selecting candidates for members of the Constitutional Convention.

The Democratic and Liberal Republican State Central Committees, together with a large number of representatives of the two organizations from different parts of the State, held a consultation meeting this afternoon, pursuant to a call issued on the 6th of this month. A committee had been appointed by the Democratic and Liberal Republican State Committee to prepare an address to the Democrats and Liberals of Ohio for consideration and adoption by this meeting. This committee con- [illegible] Senator Thurman, on behalf of the committee, reported an address to the meeting, which was considered and unanimously adopted. It is as follows:

To the Democrats and Liberal Republicans of Ohio: The presidential election is over, and Grant is elected. It is not our purpose at this time to speak of the causes of this result. It is the future that demands your attention. Recurrence to the past is useful only to ascertain the facts and lessons it may teach. A vast majority of the Democratic party, perhaps ninety-five per cent, voted for Greeley. A large number of citizens heretofore members of the Republican organization also voted for him. The aggregate of their votes, as nearly as we can estimate, exceeds three millions and a quarter. The nominal popular majority for Grant is something over half a million on a vote of nearly or quite seven millions—a majority of about seven per cent. This is the result, as nearly as we are able, in the absence of official returns to state it. But this vote does not represent with exactness the sentiment of the country. It is evident that a large body of electors stayed away from the polls. Nearly every one of these men is an opponent of the administration, and if they had seen fit to cast their vote Grant's popular majority would be very small, if it would exist at all.

The prominent features of the election may be briefly stated: Ninety-five per cent of the Democrats voted for Greeley; of the remaining five per cent, a comparatively small number voted for Grant, though the greater part of them did not vote at all. Of the Liberal Republicans who joined this party of reform, a large majority stood fast, while others, despairing of success, went back to their old associations or stand at home.

Now, leaving out of view the venal men who, from corrupt motives, deserted the cause and voted for Grant, and who cannot be relied upon by any party that uses none but honorable means to further its success, it may be safely affirmed that the great body of the electors who stayed away from the polls are, as they have been in times past, opposed to the dominant radical party. It is true that they did not vote, and by their vote manifest their opposition in the late election, and this fact is greatly to be regretted; but let us not rashly cast harsh censures upon them. If they could not overcome their old feelings and prejudices so far as to vote for a life long opponent, we may deplore the fact, but we should not be so unjust as to place them in the ranks of our enemies. We have an abiding faith that, with time and reflection, they will be found, as heretofore, acting on our side. The Radical camp is no camp for them, nor is it the part of wisdom to draw the party tomahawk upon Democrats or Liberal Republicans who, from conscientous but mistaken motives, saw fit to vote for Grant. The circumstances were novel and peculiar, such as had never before been seen, and men of the best intentions were liable to error. Condemn as strongly as you will base men who sold their votes, but be charitable to your old friends, who under circumstances of difficulty and embarrassment differed from you in opinion. Instead of repelling, strive to win them back. Free, independent thought is the very essence of Democracy and true Republicanism. It created the Democratic party at the beginning, and it has maintained it ever since. It gave rise to the Liberal Republican element of to-day, and to it we must look for accessions in the future.

What is wanted, then, is not crimination and recrimination, but the opposite. Three and a quarter millions of electors have protested, by their votes, against the radical misrule under which the country has suffered, and which threatens to overthrow the very foundation of free government. The reasons for their protest are as potent to day as they were when they cast their votes. By every consideration of consistency and just principle, these men are bound to continue to act together. The necessity for reform is likely to increase instead of diminish; advocates of centralization are likely to become more audacious than ever in their attacks upon local self government. The exaction of combined wealth and the corrupt use of money in elections are likely to become established usages if not speedily rebuked. It is no time, therefore for any lover of free institutions, or purity in elections and government, and of just and equal laws, to relax his efforts, nor is it intelagent or wise or manly to dispair of success. No reform party ever gained its first battle. Consolidated abuses can only be overthrown by repeated assaults. Monopoly and corruption ever die hard, but in the end they do die when a free and virtuous people will their destruction.

We say, then, to every friend of reform, be of good cheer. Ohio is, we believe, the only State in which the Radical majority of 1868 has been reduced. A few more struggles, and it will cease.

(Signed) JOHN G. THOMPSON,
Chairman Democratic State Central Committee.
R. BRINKERHOFF,
Chairman Liberal Republican State Central Committee.

The duty of calling a State Convention of the two organizations was remitted to the two State Executive Committees. Considerable talk was elicited by the reading of the resolutions adopted by the Liberal meeting, but most of the older Democrats present objected so strongly to giving up the name of the Democratic party and adopting in its stead "Liberal" party, that no motion or resolution on the subject was brought before the meeting. The meeting did no other business.

The San Juan Boundary Question.

Text of the Decision of the Emperor of Germany.

The following is the text of the decision of the Emperor of Germany on the San Juan Boundary Question, published in The London Echo on the 30th of October:

We, William, by the Grace of God German Emperor, King of Prussia, &c., after examination of the treaty between the Government of Her Britannic Majesty and that of the United States of America, dated at Washington, May 6, 1871, by virtue of which the above-named Governments have submitted to our arbitration the question at issue between them, viz., whether the line of boundary which, according to the treaty dated at Washington, June 15, 1846, after it had been continued westward along the 49th parallel of north latitude to the middle of the channel which separates the continent from Vancouver's Island, shall be further drawn southerly through the middle of the said channel and of Fuca Straits to the Pacific Ocean, should be run, as claimed by the Government of Her Brittanic Majesty, through the Rasario Straits, or through the Canal of Haro, as claimed by the Government of the United States, in order that we should decide finally, and without appeal, which of these claims is most in accordance with the true interpretation of the treaty of June, 1846, have, after taking into consideration the statement of the experts and jurists appointed by us to report upon the contents of the respective cases and counter cases, with their inclosures, given the following decision:

The claim of the Government of the United States—viz., that the line of boundary between the dominions of Her Brittanic Majesty and the United States should be run through the Canal of Haron, is most in accordance with the true interpretation of the treaty concluded between the Gov[illegible] Brittanic Majesty and that of the United States of America, dated at Washington, [illegible] Berlin, Oct. 21, 1872. THE BOSTON MYSTERY.

Arrest of the Supposed Murderer—Strong Circumstantial Evidence.

Since the murder of young Converse by Greene the Malden Postmaster, there has not been a murder so dreadful in its conception as to execution as that of Abijah M. Ellis, in Boston, and never did detective skill work more rapidly and effectively than in the case of Leavitt Alley, who is now fully committed as the perpetrator of the shocking deed. A letter from Boston, dated the 10th, gives the following details of the horrible affair: On Wednesday afternoon the two barrels with their horrible contents, were taken from the Charles river basin. Twelve hours later the Boston police were notified, and circumstances trivial in themselves were raised from the rut of every day life and held up before the public gaze with startling distinctness. The first link in the chain of evidence was found at once. Within ten hours the scene of the crime was reached, and a search made assurance doubly sure that it was committed in the little stable of Leavitt Alley, and detained him, though he was not really taken into custody. Before the officers had found him, an enterprising reporter had removed from the stable stains which, under the powerful microscope and searching eyes of the chemist, had already been proved to be clots of human blood, in which were found minute threads of the coat worn by the murdered man. Alley was quite calm and unconcerned when arrested, and told the Chief of Police the following story:

He said he was acquainted with Mr. Ellis, the murdered man; that he had purchased a horse of him; the bargain was only a verbal one, and he had taken possession and had agreed to pay $50 a month. He was owing Mr. Ellis some $30 on last month. He saw him Saturday, and agreed to meet him Tuesday noon on Washington street, but did not meet him; had not seen him Saturday; on Tuesday he (Alley) had worked at his stand until night, when he and his teamsters went home. His son reminded him that he had left a small stove near the stand, and he (Alley) went for it, returning about nine o'clock. His wife was ill in the night, and about 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, he went out to chop potatoes for his horses. At 7 he hitched up his team and went to Haymarket square. Alley had been in the habit of carrying barrels of shavings from Schouller's billiard saloon to his stable in Hunneman street, and making bedding of it. Yesterday, Alley was taken over to Cambridge, and saw the body, and said that without any doubt the larger barrel was taken from his stable on Wednesday morning. He had bought four barrels, two of which he took up stairs, which the police find to be the fact. Alley states he left the other two barrels in the passage way, and these the police are unable to find. So much for Alley's story. Now it is proposed to show, by whose testimony, I am not at liberty now to state, that Ellis left his boarding house about 7:30 Tuesday evening, saying that he was going to his room on Dover place, and he was later seen in that vicinity. A difficulty was heard in Alley's stables between 8 and 9 o'clock Tuesday evening. High words and other angry sounds were overheard. It will also appear that early Wednesday morning a team passed out just beyond Parker street, on Beacon street, with two barrels lying down in the wagon. In a short time afterward, before a sufficient time had elapsed for it to go over the sluice some way beyond Parker street, the wagon returned without any barrels.

It would also probably appear that about the same hour Alley was met in Charles street with a team answering to this description, but containing no barrels, going from Beacon toward Boylston street. Now Alley says further that he left two of the barrels in Schouller's billiard manufactory, where he got his shavings, and the other two he left in a passage-way near the stand. The two last-named barrels cannot be found, though every exertion has been made to trace them; but the first two were discovered in the spot named by Mr. Alley. He says that four or five weeks ago he had an old axe at his stand on Hunneman street, but it was stolen, and for several weeks he has not seen it. This morning, however, officers in the course of their investigations found an axe in Alley's yard, and when he was questioned in relation to it, he at first denied knowing anything about it, but on being pressed in the matter, admitted that he had recently taken it into the stable. It will appear in evidence that Mr. Alley, within a short time, purchased a new axe at a certain store, and that it was used by him and others at his stable on Monday morning last, the time when Mr. Ellis was last seen alive. When the startling revelation was made that Alley's coat, vest and pants were completely bespattered with blood, a great deal of blood being discovered on the inside of the vest, these garments were at once submitted to the State Assayer, and, upon analysis, that gentleman proved beyond a doubt that the articles of raiment were soaked in blood.

After these strong proofs of guilt had been developed Chief of Police Savage, at 11 o'clock this afternoon, confronted Alley and informed him of the strong evidence that had already accumulated against him, but Alley very calmly denied any knowledge of the murder, and denied several statements, very particularly that of the man who saw Alley on Charles street as he was returning with an empty wagon, which, when search was made, could not be found, nor has it yet been discovered. This is one of the most important links necessary to connect Mr. Alley with the murder, and every possible measure will be taken to find the place where it is secreted. On Thursday morning, after being informed of the murder, the officer went to Mr. Alley's stable on Hunneman street, and in several places found spots of blood sufficient to indicate that the murder had been committed there. During the investigation at the stable, Mr. Alley was present, and immediately after he was directed to remove his clothing, when upon an inspection blood was found on his under clothing, which he said came from his wife. The next point will be to examine the clothes that he wore on Thursday. He is now in the city prison, and no communication will be allowed with him.

Minority Representation Pennsylvania.

The principle of Minority Representation—that is, of dividing a State into districts whereof each chooses three members to its House of Representatives, and enabling the political minority to choose one of these by voting thrice for him—has had its first full trial at the recent election in Illinois, and is generally approved. It is difficult for "Rings" to elect a full delegation under it; in fact, it all but insures the defeat of an obnoxious candidate.

Pennsylvania has just entered upon the revision of her Constitution by a Legislature chosen last month, and we note with satisfaction that the Hon C. R. Buckalew, late candidate for Governor, has been made a member of it through the [illegible] Mr. L. D. Rhone of Luzerne, [illegible] Mr. B.'s substitution [illegible] cratic delegates at large. Mr. B. THE NATIONAL CENTENNIAL.

ADDRESS OF THE COMMISSIONERS.

The Commissioners in charge of the celebration of the National Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia have issued the following address:

To the people of the United States: The Congress of the United States has enacted that the completion of the One Hundredth Year of American Independence shall be celebrated by an International Exhibition of the Arts, Manufactures and Products of the soil and mine, to be held in Philadelphia, in 1876, and has appointed a Commission, consisting of representatives from each State and Territory, to conduct the celebration.

Originating under the auspices of the National Legislature, controlled by a National Commission, and designed as it is to "commemorate the first century of our existence, by an exhibition of the natural resources of the country and their development, and of our progress in those arts which benefit mankind in comparison with those of old nations," it is to the people at large that the Commission look for the aid which is necessary to make the centennial celebration the grandest anniversary the world has ever seen.

That the completion of the first century of our existence should be marked by some imposing demonstration is, we believe, the patriotic wish of the people of the whole country. The Congress of the United States has wisely decided that the birthday of the Great Republic can be most fittingly celebrated by the universal collection and display of all the trophies of its progress. It is designed to bring together, within a building covering fifty acres, not only the varied productions of our mines and of the soil, but types of all the intellectual triumphs of our citizens, specimens of everything that America can furnish, whether from the brains or the hands of her children, and thus make evident to the world the advancement of which a self-governing people is capable. In this "celebration" all nations will be invited to participate, its character being International. Europe will display her arts and manufactures, India her curious fabrics, while the newly opened China and Japan will lay before the treasures which for centuries those ingenious people have been perfecting. Each land will compete in generous rivalry for the palm of superiority or excellence.

To this grand gathering every zone will contribute its fruits and cereals. No minerals shall be wanting; for what the East lacks the West will supply. Under one roof will the South display in rich luxuriance her growing cotton and the north, in miniature, the ceaseless machinery of her mills, converting that cotton into cloth. Each section of the globe will send its best offerings to this exhibition and each State of the Union, as a member of one united body politic, will show to her sister States and to the world how much she can add to the greatness of the nation of which she is a harmonious part. To make the Centennial Celebration such a success as the patriotism and the pride of every American demands will require the co-operation of the people of the whole country. The United States Centennial Commission has received no Government aid, such as England extended to her world's Fair, and France to her Universal Exposition, yet the labor and responsibility imposed upon the Commission is as great as in either of those undertakings. It is estimated that $10,000,000 will be required, and this sum Congress has provided shall be raised by stock subscription, and that the people shall have the opportunity of subscribing in proportion to the population of their respective States and Territories. The Commission looks to the unfailing patriotism of the people of every section, to see that each contributes its share to the expenses and receives its share of the benefits of an enterprise in which all are so deeply interested. It would further earnestly urge the formation of each State and Territory of a centennial organization, which shall in time see that country associations are formed, so that when the nations are gathered together in 1876 each Commonwealth can view with pride the contributions she has made to the national glory.

Confidently relying on the zeal and patriotism ever displayed by our people in every national undertaking, we pledge and prophesy that the Centennial Celebration will worthily show how greatness, wealth, and intelligence can be fostered by such institutions as those which have for one hundred years blessed the people of the United States.

The most important part of Mr. Greeley's letter [illegible] the announcement that The N. Y. Tribune will hereafter be an independent journal. Be Independent.

The Springfield Republican of November 9, has an article on the temper and duty of the hour, in which it advices the liberals to aid reform from whatever source it comes; hopes Grant, in his second term will lift himself out of the rings and abandon Cameronism, and gives this

ADVICE TO THE LIBERALS,

In the first place, their good sense and self-respect ought to prevent them from crying too long or too passionately over the spilt milk. Mr. Greeley's defeat is a legitimate cause for regret; but there is no call for whimpering about it. Still less is there any just cause for despair. We are glad to be able to say that out of the liberal republican and liberal democratic journals coming to this office, there are only two or three which show symptoms of having lost their faith in the great republic. The majority take their disappointment philosophically—that is to say, sensibly. There is occasion for regret, certainly. But there is no occasion whatever for despair, or the affectation for despair. The crockery is broken and can't be mended. Very well, then let us go to work and see if we cannot replace it with better.

Everybody has a cure for sore throat, but simple remedies seem to be the most effectual. Salt and water is used by many as a gargle, but a little alum and honey dissolved in sage tea is better. Others, a few drops of camphor on loaf sugar, which very often affords immediate relief. An application of cloths wrung out of hot water and applied to the neck, changed as often as it begins to get cool, has the most potency in removing inflamation.

"Poor Pennsylvania."—A wicked Toledo (O.) paper thus refers to a Pennsylvanian and Pennsylvania:

On Wednesday an old gentleman by the name of Grady, who had a most venerable and patriarchal appearance, was brought before the Police Court on a charge of drunkenness. He was en route for Chicago; but having tarried in Toledo over night, unfortunately wrestled with Dolly Vardens and other refreshing beverages until he caught an unlucky fall. When his Honor learned that the old gentleman was from the State that allowed Hartranft to be elected he immediately remitted his fine and gave him an escort to the cars. Everybody feels the deepest compassion for the deluded Pennsylvanian since the late election.

Mules 1,000 Feet Below the Earth's Surface—How They were Got There, and How They Will be Got up Again.—Three mules were needed in the Belcher mine in September, 1871. This mine is 1,00 feet below the surface of the earth. They were needed at that time to haul cars loaded with ore up an incline to the Yellow Jacket hoisting works. A new incline has been completed, and ore will no longer be hauled up the old one. These mules before being taken down the shaft, were thrown down and tied, bound up in sacks and sent down endways. They will have to undergo similar treatment in being hoisted out. It is not expected that they will be brought up under a week or ten days, as, in case of accident, their services may be required. Singular as it may seem, these mules are as fat and as sleek as any in the country. Their stable is at the junction of the Crown Point and Yellow Jacket, where a free current of good air is always flowing. When they are raised, they will require to be blinded for about a week, in order that their eyes may get used to the light of day.—Virginia City Nevada Enterprise.

New Goods.—B. Mulheim has just returned from New-York city, where he has been for a week or more purchasing a large lot of New Variety Goods, including an immense stock of imported Carpets, Rugs, Mats, Toys, Looking Glasses, Brackets, Traveling Satchels, Trunks and Valises; also a nice assortment of Chromos, Books, School Books, Musical Instruments, Vases, and indeed everything found in a first class variety store. He will be in receipt of new goods almost every day. Call and see him and receive a bargain. Bridge St., Bridgewater. nov6-3w

A Little Rough on Quay.—The Harrisburg Patriot, digs Quay of this place as follows:

The virtuous Mr. Quay of the Beaver Radical thinks that Greeley "represents the very worst party that ever existed in the country." As a member of the Cameron ring Quay ought to be a competent judge of what constitutes a good party.

The Beaver Radical says Greeley "sank as sinks the setting sun, radiant with the glories of the democratic party." The "setting sun radiant with the dying glories of the democratic party" is good.

Very many good people in Pennsylvania and other portions of the country look upon the election of Simon Cameron to a seat in the Senate of the United States as a serious evil. But we beg these good people to reflect for a moment on what might happen in case the chie. of the ring should decline a reelection. The Harrisburg correspondent of the Beaver Radical says that in the event of Gen. Cameron not being a candidate the following distinguished radicals are named for the succession: Hon H Bucher Swope, Hon Wayne Mac Veagh, Col M S Quay, Col J D Cameron and Hon Wm H Kemble. If the United States Senator is to be chosen from that crowd, it will be generally agreed that there are worse calamities than the re-election of Senator Cameron. Should he decline, the power to choose any one whom the treasury ring may designate is undisputed. They have gained the victory and are entitled to its spoils.

I heard a gentleman make this remark a few days ago: "Well, I believe I will go to Pittsburgh and have an overcoat made to order." "Let me offer a suggestion, will you?" said I. "Certainly," said he. "Well," said I, "just go up to New Brighton and examine S. & J. Snellenburg's stock of overcoats before you go to Pittsburgh, and see what a nice cash balance you will save by the operation, if you buy of them." He went. I saw him since, happy as a clam at high tide, and looking defiance to winter.

Reunion at the Penitentiary.—Last evening there was a reunion at the Western Penitentiary quite different from [illegible] The parties on this occasion were the Justices of the Supreme Court, the Judges of the county Courts, the county [illegible] and other distinguished members of the bar, in short, the law executors and enforcers rather than the law breakers. It has for years been the custom of the Supreme Court on making a visit to this institution about the close of its session, for purposes of inspection, &c., and the Warden on such occasions acts the part of a good host by furnishing a sumptuous supper. Last evening, at five o'clock, the party started in carriages, and having been welcomed to the place where bad people go, by the good host, Mr. Wright, they were shown through the building. Though no reporters of the press were among the party, reserved rooms inside being probably retained for them for future use—it has been learned that the evening was passed very agreeably. The early retirement of Chief Justice Thompson from the Bench imparted an interest to the event which was felt by all. Notwithstanding the political opinions of the Chief Justice, the Bar will sincerely regret his withdrawal.—Pitts. Dispatch, Nov 15.

Sagacity of a Mare.—A remarkable instance of the sagacity (is it not reason?) of a horse has come to our notice. Mr. John Fletcher, a Norwegian, owns an unbroken cayuse mare which runs in a pasture adjoining his house. The mare, which is very wild, has a young colt at her side. A few nights since, after Mr. Fletcher had retired, he was aroused by the mare coming to the window of his house, and by pawing, neighing and way in every possible trying to get his attention. This continuing for some time, he got up and went out and drove her away, and returned again to bed, but she immediately returned, and if possible increased her demonstrations; he again went out when the mare came up to him and rubbed her nose against him, though always before she had been very shy of allowing any one to come within reach of her, then ran on a few yards before him continuing her neighing; then, as he did not follow her she returned to him rubbing against him in the most demonstrative manner. [illegible] Mr. Fletcher went for some of his neighbors and with them returned. While they were taking the little fellow out, the mare manifested the most intense [illegible] and seemed almost beside herself with joy, and afterwards, when the men had got out of the hole, she came up to Mr. F., and placing her nose on his shoulder, gave every sign of gratitude that a human mother might under similar circumstances. Who will say that the horse does not reason?—[Virginian City Montanian.

Sad Occurrence.—We are sorry to learn that Capt. Geo. W. Skinner, well known to many of our citizens as a former student of our college, unwittingly got into a serious disturbance at McConnellsville, Fulton county, on the night of the 5th inst. As is known the Capt was one of the democratic Senatorial Electors and his active participation in the canvass seems to have provoked bitter enmity toward him. On the night of the day of the election, while Capt. S was standing in a hotel conversing with some gentlemen, Francis Hammill, one of a party of three roughs, failing to provoke the Capt. to blows by the use of insulting language, hurled a large stone at him, which, striking him on the forehead, prostrated him and rendered him unconscious for some time. Geo B. Kerper, an uncle of the Captain by affinity, who was standing by, thinking that his nephew had been murdered, drew a revolver and fired at Hammill as he was fleeing up a stairway; but unfortunately the ball missed its mark and entered the brain of a young man named Robert H. Welsh, a stranger to Mr. Kerper, and a warm friend of Captain Skinner, injuring him so seriously that he died at seven o'clock the next morning. Mr. K. immediately surrendered himself, and was admitted to bail in $20,000, no one believing that the killing was intentional. Mr. Welsh knew nothing of the intended assault and had no complicity whatever with the difficulty. Capt. S. was taken the next day to his residence, at Big Cove Tannery, a few miles distant, and has since been suffering greatly from his wound, and it is possible his skull is fractured.—[Wash. Life in a Printing Office.—Few people are aware of the inside workings of a printing office, nor of the annoyances attendant upon the publication of a newspaper. It is impossible to form anything like a correct idea of the number of men there are in every community, who make it a point about every other time they meet you to tell you of some important fact that ought to be noticed by the paper pro bono publico. Generally, however, it turns out that the item referred to is one in which the informant has an axe to grind, and the newspaper is to be the free horse on which he expects to ride into public notice and confidence. Or if not that he is constantly annoyed by a multiplicity of communications, which are always lengthy, and contain nothing that anybody cares to see in print or know anything of whatever, except the writer, and perhaps one or two other particular individuals, and for whose exclusive benefit it was written, it not for a moment occurring to the writer that communications for a newspaper should be such as would interest thousands of readers. The newspaper business is very exacting on all connected with it, and the pay is comparatively small. The proprietor risks a large amount of money for smaller profits, and the editors and printers work harder and cheaper than the same number of men in any other profession, requiring the given amount of intelligence and training. The life has its charms and pleasant associations scarcely known to the outside world; but it has its earnest work, and hours of exhaustion, which likewise are not known to those who think the business all fun. The idea that newspaperdom is the charmed circle where the favored members live a life of ease, free from care, is a mistaken one. Business is business, and the journal that succeeds is the one that is run on a fair business footing, with the same system as a banking establishment.

Insurance Circular.—Benj. Rush Bradford, Esq., of New Brighton, has issued the following circular, which explains itself:

After the Great Fire in Boston.—The Franklin Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, established 1829. Cash assets $3,255,748; Boston losses, not over $500,000. The Royal Fire Insurance Co. of Liverpool and London; cash assets, gold, $10,000,000; Boston losses, not over $1,250,000. The German American of New York; cash assets, $1,000,000; Boston losses, not over $100,000. The above companies may well be proud of so untarnished a record, and the reliable indemnity against fire offered in their policies, as tested by two so fiery ordeals as Chicago and Boston, should at once point out to the insuring public where to bestow their patronage.

Additional Facts Touching the Beaver Falls Burglar.—We gave a detailed history last week of the capture of "Thomas Grant," who was detected in the act of burglarizing the store of Mr. Duncan, merchant, of Beaver Falls, by the latter's clerk, Mr. Perott. The burglar, "Grant," was put upon trial after a few days "rest" in the county jail, convicted, and sentenced to the penitentiary for a period of four years. On last Tuesday morning Deputy Sheriff John Gracing, jr., handcuffed his prisoner, and started with him for his new home in Allegheny. "Grant" made two or three feeble attempts on the way to get out of the clutches of the officer, but as he was closely watched, and quickly taken hold of when he made any suspicious movements, he was finally handed over to the Warden of the penitentiary, who at once recognized "Grant" as an old offender, and an old inmate of the institution he was about to enter again. It is only seven months since he was discharged from it, having served out a sentence there for a burglary committed in Allegheny county some years ago. At that time he was arrested, tried and punished under the name of "Thomas Rodney." We presume that his name is neither "Grant" nor "Rodney," but that he is a hardened villain there can be no doubt. The Warden of the penitentiary looks upon him as one of the most desperate characters that has been in that institution for a number of years. He is about fifty-four years of age, and is remarkably reticent touching his field of operations before coming to Western Pennsylvania.

The Epizootic in Pittsburgh has made sad havoc with trade in that city. Nearly all the horses in that place have the disease now or are recovering from it. Mules are not, it seems, subject to its visitations, and as a consequence mule teams are doing an immense amount of hauling in the city, and their owners are reaping a rich harvest. Ox teams and wagons drawn by men and boys can be seen almost everywhere in the streets of Pittsburgh, doing a little of the hauling for which there is such a general demand. The amount thus done, however, is small, and the result is; business is almost at a stand-still, everybody is discouraged, and all are hoping for an abatement of the disorder. As a general rule, the plague is not fatal, but horses attacked by it should be gently treated and well sheltered.

A RELIABLE AND POPULAR FIRM.—It is certainly gratifying to the numerous patrons of the well known and highly popular firm of S. J. Cross & Co., New York street, Rochester, Pa., to learn that Mr. S. J. Cross has just returned from the East, where he has been for the last few days, purchasing a large stock of dry goods and general merchandise, from which their customers can make selections at very reasonable rates.

This firm have already received a very large invoice of their new winter dress goods and notions, and will be in receipt of other invoices almost every day.

Among the goods now received are the staple articles of dry goods, such as prints of the latest and most fancy patterns; bleached and unbleached muslins, heavy and light, of every texture; blankets in different colors, shawls, nubias, scarfs, Balmoral skirts, hoop skirts, and a splendid assortment of flannels, Canton flannels and linseys.

Special attention is called to the dress goods, consisting of fine black alpacas, queen's cloths, mohair and empress cloths, challies and delaines,

Also to the fancy waterproofs in black, brown, green and blue, very desirable and attractive.

Also Japanese silks and cloths, chintz, percales, imperial and Tartan plaids.

Also, a very good assortment of hats, caps and umbrellas.

The department of notions is proportionately attractive, consisting of ladies' and gentlemen's wear in hosiery, woolen, merino and cotton; suspenders, crash, table linen, and a variety of trimmings calculated to please the most fastidious.

Varieties in lace ribbons, braid, buttons, and, to sum up, almost anything in the notion line.

The stock of boots and shoes, too, demands the attention of all, as they have been selected with great care, and comprise all the different varieties in boots, shoes, slippers and gaiters, suitable for ladies, gentlemen and children.

The hardware department is no inconsiderable feature, either, as you can find here a complete assortment of builders' hardware and carpenters' supplies, such as saws, hatchets, files, squares, locks, hinges, screws, door and window fastenings; iron, nails, window glass and cutlery. Also, a lot of agricultural implements.

The line of groceries, too, is very large and well selected,—teas, coffees & spices a specialty,—and give good satisfaction.

A word of explanation here might not be amiss to those who sometimes step beyond the limits of our county in purchasing goods, fancying they can do better in Pittsburgh or some other large place. Well, located as this firm is, in a place where rents are comparatively low, and every facility for the transportation of merchandise either east or west, and having a large amount of capital invested in the business, they are enabled to buy at as low figures as are given to jobbers—thus being enabled to give their numerous customers all the advantages derived by making extensive purchases, giving quite an inducement to buyers. If you wish to get a good bargain in any kind of general merchandise, call on S. J. Croes & Co., Rochester, Pa.

The Boston Fire.—A faint idea of the great fire on last Saturday night one week ago, may be had from the fact that the district burned over covers sixty-five acres of ground, and embraces the best business portion of the city. Upwards of seven hundred buildings are in ashes, the bare blackened walls standing upright amid the ruins. The suffering occasioned by this awful visitation is great, but it does not affect so many helpless poor people as did the Chicago fire of one year ago.

Why Is It?—A naughty newspaper in the interior of the State, wants to know why it is that when ladies call to see a friend, for a friendly chat, that they cannot finish their gossip in-doors, and not stand on the pavements or stoops for many minutes after leaving the parlor, to continue the conversation. The practice is an abominable one, particularly in cold weather. A lady makes a call in full dress, of course, furs, gloves and hat on, the two former of which she removes when she enters the parlor, and puts on when she leaves. Thus attired, it is not so probable she will take cold, while standing at the door, as the lady of the house, who, kept in an open entry or hall through which a cold current of air rushes, is soon affected. In just this manner many a woman's health is ruined; neuralgia, rheumatism, aches, pains, and other ills, following such indiscretion. It would be well for ladies, and all others, when making a call, to do their gossiping in-doors.

Election Frauds.—We trust that the following advice, given by the Harrisburg State Journal, will be heeded by the people of Beaver county: Now that all the elections are over, is the time to set about uncovering political fraud of every description. The humblest as well as the most influential man in the community is interested in insuring revelations to convict every perpetrator of political fraud, and insure their punishment. Those who have any knowledge of wrong should at once bring it to the notice of the proper authorities, that the guilty may be punished, and thus prevent them from securing the political rewards which are generally the price of their partisan prostitutions. It well becomes the journalists of all parties, on the eve of the meeting of the Constitutional Convention, and during its session, to point out the defects, with the facts involved, in the manner of holding our elections, the system of assessment, paying taxes, etc. There is as much danger in concealing as in committing fraud.

Thermometer Fantastics.—On last Friday morning the thermometer hereabouts dropped down, without much warning to anybody, to 24 degrees above zero. It was a tumble down of 20 or 25 degrees in a few hours time. Why this was thus we are not quite clear ourselves, but trust that our readers know all about it.

The Wool Trade—Look Out for an Advance in Winter Clothing. The New York World of a late date says: To judge from the general aspect of affairs in the wool trade in this city, the fire in Boston was an ill wind that blew an immense injury to the Bostonians, but one that was an indirect benefit to the trade of New York and Philadelphia. The almost total destruction of the wool trade in Boston, where the stock in store was estimated at about 12,000,000 pounds, or a trifle over an eighth of the whole clip of the United States, cannot but enhance the value of the stock now in store in New York city; which, at a liberal calculation, is a very light one, the supply, both domestic and South America, being all in hand and cannot be increased until next spring or early summer, nor can the supply to arrive from Australia and the Cape of Good Hope at English ports, and which is estimated at one-third less than last year's clip, increase the supply in this country, and it is generally expected that the annual wool sales, which will begin in London on the 21st of November, will show a very decided advance in prices. The trade had just begun in New York city for the season, and the sales of wool on Saturday were larger than they had been for some time. Of course the fire has struck an immediate blow to the trade and will stagnate it for a few days, until the general wreck can be cleared away. But the holders of large stocks, if they can stand the financial storm caused by the loss of over $100,000,000, cannot but realize a handsome profit on their stock. The stock now on hand cannot more than supply the machinery engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods, even if run, as they have been of late, at half time, while the supply now held in England and to arrive will not serve to keep their mills at work at scant half time. As far as could be ascertained Tuesday, none of the New York houses were disastrously affected by the fire, other than by the general depression in the money market, which they hope to tide over, while the increased profits on the stock held by many of them, and the deflection of the trade formerly held by the Boston merchant to New York, was deemed by some more in the light of a blessing than a loss. The actual sufferers by the loss of material will, to a great extent, be the public at large, as all kinds of woolen goods will advance immediately, and those who have not purchased their winter overcoat or woolen underclothing will have to pay from thirty to fifty per cent. more for them, or be contented with wearing an inferior article, composed more of shoddy than anything else.

Self-Reliant People.—There is but one sure road to success—the one made by the habits of self-reliance. People who have been bolstered up all their lives are seldom good for anything in a crisis. When misfortune comes, they look around for somebody to cling to or lean upon. If the prop is not there, down they go. Once down they are as helpless as a capsized turtle, and they cannot find their feet again without assistance. Such persons no more resemble men who have fought their way to position, making difficulties their stepping-stones, and deriving determination from defeat, than vines resemble oaks, or sputtering rushlights the stars of heaven. Efforts persisted into achievements train a man to self-reliance, and when he has proven it the world will trust him.

Accident.—A son of Mr. Avery Small, of Freedom, fell from a wagon on which he was riding a few days ago, and one of the wheels passing over his breast, injured the little fellow very severely. Dr. Lockhart, of that village, was called upon for medical aid, and under his skillful treatment the boy is rapidly recovering.

Burglary.—On Wednesday of last week, about half-past seven p. m., some one entered Thomas Minesinger's house, at Smith's Ferry, and stole the box containing railroad tickets and one dollar in scrip. The box and tickets less one hundred were found the next morning on the track in front of the depot, the box being broken up and the tickets scattered. No clue has yet been found to the thief.

Griddle "Greaser."—An exchange published in a buckwheat region says:

"As the buckwheat season is upon us, we give the following recipe for 'greasing the griddle:' Take a turnip, cut it in halves, and rub the griddle with the inner side, and you will find the cakes come off nicely and smoothly, and you will be rid of the disagreeable odor of burning fat."

We do not "vouch."

Death of Rev. Jeremiah Knox.—Rev. J. Knox, of Pittsburgh, and well known by all Methodist families in Western Pennsylvania, died on Monday evening, the 11th inst. He died of heart disease. Mr. Knox, for many years past, had been largely connected with the small fruit growing business, and in that capacity became acquainted with almost every person west of the Alleghenies. He had also been a Director for many years of the Tradesmen's National Bank of Pittsburgh. The remaining Directors, after his death became known, met and adopted a series of resolutions, from which we clip the following:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove by sudden death from our midst our highly esteemed friend and beloved brother Director, the Rev. Jeremiah Knox, who, by the purity of his life, his spotless integrity and warm-hearted and open charity, endeared him to us all, and to others with whom he came in contact.

In paying the last tribute of affectionate respect to the memory of our departed friend, we are sure that we reflect the sentiments of the community at large who have known him so long as an upright and honorable man, whom God in His providence has called to himself, and from whom we part forever.

Resolved, That the Board of Directors and officers of this bank jointly and individually tender their kindest expressions of heartfelt sympathy and condolence to his bereaved wife and mourning children upon this sad event.

"Breaking Things."—A man and a large dog entered the store of Dr. H. S. Hibbard, in Rochester, a few days ago, the former to transact some business, the latter it may be supposed to see that it was transacted properly. Presently the man went out at the door, which contained a large plate glass, and closed it after him. The dog soon followed him without opening the door. The glass that was left in it after his exit did not seem to be worth much.

More Epizootic.—The following, from the Bangor (Me.) Whig, is one of the most thrilling incidents in connection with the horse disease which has yet happened:

"A large and powerful but skittish young man attached to a hand cart, ran away on Main street yesterday forenon, to the great terror of a number of ladies on the sidewalk. He was caught, however, before doing any damage."

An Astonished Elder.—The State of Ohio used to be famous for its campmeetings and religious revivals; but an Ironton paper tells us of a circumstance which lately occurred in that locality, which is a strong indication that there is now something wrong either about the preachers or the people. A revival preacher, who had achieved considerable reputation as to his powers in the pulpit, went to Ironton for a week, to "start a revival." He showed great zeal, preaching every night during his stay, got a double row of "mourners' benches" ready, and called upon his congregation to come forward. The last night there was an immense gathering, and the preacher fairly outdid himself. He exhorted, and pleaded, and waited, but all in vain. Not a soul arose. Finally, discouraged beyond measure, he sat down. At that juncture a long-faced, anxious-looking man got up and said that the elder had been working hard and labored faithfully with them, and as a token of their appreciation he moved that the congregation give him three cheers. It was done with a heartiness that made the pews tremble, and the people went home satisfied that they had fully and faithfully performed their duty. The elder has been waiting ever since to see Ironton destroyed by fire.

The Richest Man in the World. The Khedive of Egypt is probably the richest man in the world. His yearly income is nearly $50,000,000, and he has no less than twenty-five richly-furnished palaces within the walls of Cairo. He is vastly more progressive than the Sultan, the Turkish master; is rapidly extending his dominion, building railroads, and making commercial improvements, and will ultimately become independent of Turkish domination. He is at present making arrangements for the connection of a railroad up the Nile to Dongola, and thence across the desert to Loudan, which country he will make one of his provinces. It has been remarked of him that "the Viceroy, upon any throne in Europe, would be the greatest monarch of the age." He is not only a prince, but a merchant, a capitalist, a statesman and a cultivator. He sleeps only four hours out of the twenty-four, and at his desk center his railroads, steamship lines, telegraph, postal service, private estates, sugar mills, cotton culture, army, navy and civil service.

The Salaries.—The salaries of the officers of the Constitutional Convention are as follows:

The Chief Clerk	$1,500
Two Assistants (each)	1,200
Two Transcribing Clerks	1,000
Sergeant-at-Arms	850
One Assistant	600
One Doorkeeper	600
One Assistant	500
One Postmaster	800
One Assistant and Messenger	600

Matrimonial.—Brother McCord of the Wellsville Union, married a lady named Miss Helen L. Geisse of Wellsville, on the 6th inst. The newly married couple are now on a bridal tour in the eastern states.

An Odd Fellow's Home is to be built at Meadville, Pa., next spring, its object being to care for the indigent members of the Order in Western Pennsylvania. The corner stone of the structure will be laid on the 16th of June next. The following is a list of the officers of the Association as at present constituted:

President—A K Lowrie, of Oil City,
Sec'y—D M Ward, of Rouseville.
Trustees, 3 years—D M Moriarty, Emlenton, G Hilderbrand, Mercer county; D H Boyd, J W Hannen and J B Campton, of Meadville.
Trustees, 2 years—F Merrick, Dempseytown; Thos Blackburn, Corry; J H Lenhart, Meadville; R S Newton, Beaver county; R Lackey, Venango county.
Trustees, 1 year—H Noss, Beaver Co.; J R Lytle, Mercer; A B Robbins, Meadville; Benj Allen, Venango county; J R Roberstan, Oil City.
President of the Board of Trustees—David Boyd.
Secretary—J W Hannen.
Treasurer—J H Lenhart.

The Postmaster General has ruled that "letters deposited in a post-office prepaid one full rate (three cents) but requiring two or more rates, shall be forwarded with the unpaid postage charged at double the prepaid rate, to be paid on delivery." In other words, a letter weighing over half an ounce, and less than an ounce, and prepaid by a three cent stamp only, must be forwarded, marked "due six cents."

The season for pulling shot guns through fences, and getting carried home on a stretcher, with a handful of bird-shot in your diaphragm, is just beginning.

Rev. J. F. Dravo preached a fine sermon against gambling, horse-racing and intemperance on last Sabbath evening, in the M. E. Church of Beaver. He had a large and attentive audience on the occasion.

"Just So."—Putting 45 gallons of cider in a 40 gallon barrel is uncommon hard on the barrel. We trust, therefore, for the barrel's sake, that the experiment will not be tried frequently.

Leg Broken.—On last Saturday, "Rolo," a son aged about eleven years, of Mr. Jacob Trieber, met with a casualty which resulted in the breaking of one of his legs. He was watering a neighbor's horse, and while at the trough the animal fell, throwing the boy off and falling upon his leg, broke it. Dr. Lawrence reduced the fractured limb, and the prospect is fair for a speedy recovery.

"On Dit."—It is currently reported that Mr. Quay has disposed of the Radical to Mr. J. S. Rutan, and that the latter has leased the establishment to Rev. Smith Curtis, who it seems has been the editor and publisher since the 14th of October.

Court Proceedings.—At the term of Court held here last week, the following cases were disposed of:

Com'th vs Lucy Blount. Indictment selling liquor contrary to law. Defendant plead guilty, and was fined $50 and costs.

Com'th vs Thomas Grant. Indictment, breaking open and entering a store to commit a felony. Found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for four years.

Com'th vs Augus Frank. Indictment, malicious mischief. Verdict not guilty, and prosecutor—Jefferson Wilson—to pay the costs.

Com'th vs Charles Steinfeld. Indictment, fornication and bastardy. Settled by the parties.

Com'th vs Jas. McElduff. Indictment, shooting with intent to commit murder. Jury discharged and leave granted to enter a nolle pros. Defendant to enter into recognizance in the sum of $500 to appear at the next term, and also to enter into his own recognizance in the sum of $1000 to keep the peace for one year.

Com'th vs Ralph Herbert. Indictment, surety of the peace, Nol pros. allowed in the case on payment of costs by defendant, and defendant directed to enter into his recognizance in the sum of $200.00 to keep the peace.

Com'th vs S. B. Briggs. Indictment, furnishing fraudulent naturalization paper. Ignored and the county to pay the costs.

Com'th vs Henry Murta. Indictment aggravated assault and battery. Ignored and prosecutor to pay the costs.

Com'th vs Thomas Proudlock. Indictment, voting on fraudulent naturalization papers. True bill. Continued and defendant directed to enter into recognizance in the sum of $500 for his appearance at next term.

Com'th vs Joseph M. Reed. Indictment, furnishing liquor to minors. Continued, and recognizance of defendant called and recognizance forfeited and respited until March term and rule granted on defendant to show cause at March sessions why his license should not be revoked.

Com'th vs William Kountz. Indictment, false pretense. Continued, and process awarded for defendant.

Com'th vs William Sims. Indictment voting on fraudulent naturalization papers. Continued and defendant held in $500,00 for his appearance at next term.

Concert.—We understand that the faculty of Beaver College has decided to give Mr. A. Beuter a benefit concert at the close of the present session. Mr. B. will have the best talent of the College and of New-Brighton to assist him. Miss Clara Ickes, who delighted a Beaver audience with her rich and charming voice two years ago, has kindly consented to assist Prof. B. A novel feature of this concert will be a mixed quartette of the best voices Beaver Co. can furnish. Mr. B. has been with us for four years, and we believe has done more to advance the cause of music in our community, than any other professional man that has occupied the position before him.

We hope that the musical public of this vicinity will show their appreciation of the beneficiary by a large attendance, this being Mr. B's. first benefit in Beaver county.

Shall We Meet Again.—The following is said to be one of the most brilliant articles written by the lamented George D. Prentice.

"The fiat of nature is inexorable. There is no appeal for relief from the great law which dooms us to dust. We nourish and fade as the leaves of the forest, and the flowers that bloom and wither in a day have no frailer hold upon life than the mightiest monarch that ever shook the earth with his footsteps. Generations of men will appear and disappear as the grass, and the multitude that throng the earth to-day, will disappear as the foot steps on the shore. Men seldom think of the great event of death until the shadow falls across their pathway, hiding from their eyes the faces of loved ones whose living smile was the sunlight of existence. Death is the antagonist of life, and the cold thought of the tomb is the skeleton of all feasts. We do not want to go through the dark valley, although its dark passage may lead to paradise; we do not want to lay down in the damp grave, even with princes for bed-fellows. In the beautiful drama of Iron, the hope of Immortality, so eloquently uttered by the death-devoted Greek, finds deep response in every thoughtful soul. When about to yield his young existence as a sacrifice to fate, his Clemantha asks if they should meet again, to which he replies: 'I have asked that dreadful question of these hills that look eternal, of the clear stream that flows forever, of the stars among whose fields of azure my raised spirit has walked in glory. All were dumb; but as I gaze upon thy living face, I feel that there is something in the love that mantles through its beauty that cannot wholly perish. We shall meet again Clemantha.'"

Frightful Run-off.—On last Friday afternoon, as Mrs. E. B. Cuthbertson and family of New-Brighton, were returning from a funeral in Brighton township, the team which was hitched to their carriage became frightened while descending the hill south of Fallstown, and the driver being thrown out, the horses rushed down the hill with frightful speed. On making the turn at its foot, the carriage was upset and Mrs. C. and family were thrown over an embankment some eight or ten feet high and all severely though not dangerously injured. The carriage—quite a fine one and owned by Mr. Edgar, livery stable keeper of New-Brighton—was badly used up.

Don't fail to call at Hibbard's, Rochester, Pa. nov20-2w

Penmanship.—Mr. John D Chambers of Lawrence county, an experienced teacher of penmanship, is now in this county organizing several classes in writing. He has already succeeded in raising one in Beaver Falls and one in Rochester, and has taken a room in the Public School building in Beaver, preparatory to organizing a class here. He is a fine penman, a young man of pleasing address and good character, and we hope to see him succeed in our midst. His terms are $2.50 per term of fifteen lessons for gentlemen, and $2 for ladies. On this (Wednesday) evening at 7 p. m., he will meet those who desire to take lessons at the Public School house in Beaver.

OAKLAND GROVE, BEAVER CO., PA.,
NEW BRIGHTON, Nov 18, 1872.

COL. J. WEYAND, Editor "Beaver Argus," and to the honest citizens of Beaver county, GREETING:

It is now only four days until the time allotted to James S. Rutan in which to give timely notice that he would appear at the office of an Alderman or Justice in Beaver Falls, and then and there endeavor to clear his skirts of the attempted fraud on the ballot-box of that place. We still hold out the generous offer, and will continue it until within forty-eight hours of 12 m., of the 22d inst., and if he does not before that time give the notice required he will be placed on the records of the Committee of Vigilance for ferreting out and punishing persons guilty of violating the election laws of this Commonwealth, as one against whom it will be their duty to institute legal proceedings. So, don't fail to come to time, Mr. Rutan; it is not desired to sink you any lower, for your cup of degradation is now full to overflowing.

The little red dog of the ring—Hays—names M. S. Quay (editor of "The Beaver Radical,") as the choice of General Hartranft for Secretary of the Commonwealth. Well, that would suit the gamblers and pardon brokers precisely. With Quay for Secretary, Bucher Swoope for Attorney General and Allen for Auditor General, Hartranft need go no further. That will do for one Cabinet. Mackey will have an opportunity to swim in speculations on State money as long as there is a dollar in the vault, and the State will be fleeced as Wm. H. Kemble fleeced it; but that is all right; at least so say the whelps who wear the Cameron collar. There is considerable talk just now as to who will compose the State cabinet. I care not so that Hartranft redeem his own and his advocate's pledge, that old Cameron shall not make his cabinet for him.

The Fallston loafer, it is said, is to be at Harrisburg this winter as correspondent of "The Beaver County Press." How will that suit Dumpy? Look out for fulsome and sickening laudation of the cadaverous Shanghae, for Loafer and Dumpy are both lackeys of Rutan; he examines, and suggests these puffs prior to their being forwarded for publication—"The Beaver Radical" copies them from "The Beaver County Press." Query, will Mr. Rutan continue to edit "The Conservative" after he goes to Harrisburg? It should be made known, as subscriptions might be obtained on the strength of such an assurance.

Hays is offended at the Fallston Loafer for attacking me through the "Press," because he (Hays) got a black eye in consequence. He pleads in extenuation that he was not aware that the glass in that editor's house was so exceedingly thin as it has proven to be. The matter has been amicably settled over a drink.

Hoping our Senator elect, J. S. Rutan, will make an effort to clear up these charges of fraud and infamy before he departs to disgrace his constituents in the State Senate, I am, as ever,

W. W. IRWIN.

CRANBERRIES—Sackett's and Carey's Belle Berries, $14@15 ℔ bbl; common $10a12.

CONCENTRATED LYE—$8 per case.

DRIED FRUITS—Peaches, small lots prime halves at 8½a9 cts; apples dull at 4 a6 cts.

EGGS are coming in pretty freely, but prices for fresh are still maintained at 30a32 pickled eggs at 24a27 cts.

FEATHERS—No. 1, live geese may be quoted at 72a75 to the trade, and 3 to 5cts additional for smaller lots.

FLOUR—There is no falling off in the demand, but dealers are unable, in consequence of the horse epidemic, to deliver; hence trade is dull. Prices range at $7.50a7 75 for fair to choice spring wheat; and $8.00a8.25 for fair to choice winter wheat. Rye flour $5.25a5.50.

GRAIN continues very dull, and no improvement is anticipated until the epizootic has abated somewhat. Wheat is quiet and nominally unchanged; $1.60a 1.65 for good to choice red, and $1.80a1.85 for white. Oats dull but unchanged; 38 a40 cents for mixed, 41a42 cts for white; shelled corn 56a58 cts; rye continues quiet, and we quote nominally at 75 to 80cts. Barley 80a85c for fair to prime, and 90 for choice.

GROCERIES—The grocery trade is dull—most of the houses being unable to either deliver or receive goods for want of transportation. Coffees and Sugars are reported weaker in the east. A Rio telegram under date of Oct. 18th, and received at New York on Thursday, reports as follows: Purchases since 7th inst, 93,000 bags; stock 120,000 bags; daily receipts, 10,000 bags. Market firm.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.

A Serial Story By Dr. HOLLAND. New Story By SAXE HOLM. A Long Story from BRET HARTE.
BRILLIANT ARRAY of CONTRIBUTORS.
CLARENCE COOK On Furniture & Decoration.
R. H. STODDARD On Authors.

Extraordinary Inducements to New Subscribers; 600 Pages for $100! &c., &c.

The Publisher's of Scribner's Monthly, in their Prospectus just issued, promise for the ensuing year a more brilliant array of contributors, and an increase in the variety and beauty of its illustrations, already conceded by the critics to be "finer than any which have hitherto appeared in any American magazine."

DR HOLLAND, the editor, will write the serial story of the year, which will be autobiographical in form, and will be illustrated by Miss Hallock. It is entitled Arthur Bonnicastle, and will deal with some of the most difficult problems of American Life. It will be commenced in the November Number.

There will be a new story by SAXE HOLM, The One-Legged Dancers

BRET HARTE, the best writer of short stories now living, will contribute a characteristic story, entitled The Epic of Fiddletown, which will be illustrated by Sheppard.

R. H. STODDARD will write a series of entertaining papers about Authors, their Personal Characteristics, Home Life, Families, Friends, Whims and Ways. A series of Portraits of Living American Writers, is also promised.

CLARENCE COOK will write about Furniture, & the Decoration of American Homes. These papers will be eminently practical as well as artistic, and will be illustrated with designs and sketches by numerous artists in addition to those which the writer himself will furnish.

Among those who will contribute are—Hans Anderson, Bryant, Bushnell, Eggleston, Froude, Higginson, Bishop Huntington, Bret Harte, John Hay, H. H., Macdonald, Mitchell, Miss Phelps, Steadman, Stockton, Stoddard, Celia Thaxter, Warner, Wilkinson, Mrs. Whitney, besides a host of others.

The editorial control and direction of the Magazine will remain in the hands of Dr Holland, who will continue to write "The Topics of the Time," which the New York Independent says "are more widely quoted than any similar papers in any American magazine."

Watson Gilder will write "The Old Cabinet," as hitherto. Prof. John C. Draper conducts the Department of "Nature and Science." The Departments of "Home and Society," and "Culture and Progress," will engage the contributions of more than a score of pens on both sides of the Atlantic. The Watchman and Reflector says: "Scribner's Monthly for September is better than usual, which indicates a useless waste of editorial brains and publisher's money, for the Magazine was good enough before!" And yet the publishers promise to make it still better for the coming year!

The subscription price is $4,00 a year, with special rates to Clergymen, Teachers, and Postmasters.

The following Extraordinary Inducements are offered to subscribers:

For $5.50 the Publishers will send, or any Bookseller or Newsdealer will supply, the magazine for one year, and twelve numbers of Vols. III and IV, containing the beginning of Mrs. Oliphant's Serial, "At His Gates;" for $7.50 the Magazine for one year, and the 24 back numbers from the beginning; for $10.50 the Magazine for one year, and the 24 back numbers bound (4 vols.), charges on bound vols. paid. This will give nearly 5000 pages of the choicest reading, with the finest illustrations, for $10.50, or nearly 500 pages for a dollar! and will enable every subscriber to obtain the series from the first. Special terms to Dealers, Clergymen, and Teachers

SELECT MISCELLANY.

UNTIL DEATH DO US PART.

BY MRS. H. W. BEECHER.

"A wife" writes that she has three children, has been married eight years, and thinks it would be pleasant to be relieved from home cares and travel for a few months. Her mother would take her children home, so that she could feel perfectly at ease about them, but her husband objects. He cannot possibly go with her, and though it would be much pleasanter to have him accompany her, yet she could go with friends, who would give her every attention. Her husband is abundantly able to afford her this pleasure, but objects to her leaving him—"having his home broken up and his children separated from him"—(sensible man). He endeavors to persuade her to be contented at home until by and by he can take wife and children on this pleasure trip."

Now she declares that she has no faith in these "by, and bys," with which husbands seek to keep their wives from enjoying the present, by promises for the future. She thinks him unreasonably selfish; and feels that she would be justified in cutting loose from such bondage occasionally, and taking her pleasure, as she constantly sees so many other ladies doing.

We are pained with the whole tone of this letter, of which we give but a few items. Notwithstanding her complaints and faultfinding, the writer cannot hide the fact that, from her own showing, she has a pleasant home, an indulgent husband, and wealth sufficient to obviate any necessity for labor or care, more than is required to superintend her domestic affairs, and look after her children; as every mother and housekeeper pledges herself to do when she enters the married state. It is natural that her husband should object to her leaving him for months—deprive him of his children, and disorganize his home, for her own gratification.

"Until death do us part" the promise reads; not simply for a few years, at the end of which the whole domestic economy may become deranged simply for personal pleasure, apart from the family.

We see nothing that this dissatisfied woman has to complain of; but are inclined to think she has been affected with those pernicious doctrines which have led to loud complaints of woman—defrauded of her rights—woman's cruel subjugation—doctrines with which we have less and less patience, because we see more and more clearly the mistakes and mischief which have sprung, and will continue to spring from them, unless the "plague is staid." No doubt many a woman is oppressed and treated unkindly—often cruelly; and made to feel that she is placed by her husband in a subordinate position, instead of reigning with him over their home—his other self with equal rights, and power only, as is meet—having charge of one department, while he takes another for which his stronger organization and peculiar masculine abilities are better adapted. The husband to superintend the outside—severer duties; the wife as God prepared her to be the mother watching over infancy; and through these duties made less physically strong, but giving grace and refinement to home, which, without her—under masculine supervision—would degenerate into coarseness and inelegance.

We know there are many overtaken, broken down women, who, by kindness and just appreciation, might have been saved, and remained altogether lovely and refined, making their homes like Paradise before the fall.

There are also many broken-down men; dispirited, uneasy of life—ruined by the frivolity, irritability and extravagance of their wives, whom a refined, sensible, loving woman would have redeemed and made happy, noble, and god-like.

We imagine that the rights and wrongs are about equally divided on either side. The deceitfulness of the human heart, the natural depravity, unsubdued, left to run wild and ungoverned, seeking not the peace and happiness of the chosen partner, but their own selfish gratification, has changed many a noble man into a reckless, uncomfortable, unprincipled husband, or an arbitary and harsh domestic tyrant. And the same selfish indulgence and unregulated passions have also changed many a woman capable of shining in her appropriate sphere as mother or home refiner into an irritable, unsatisfied fireside torment.

But this is wandering from the main point, through a train of thought very naturally evoked by the perusal of the letter referred to. We believe many homes are injured and much dissatisfaction and unhappiness occasioned by the greatly increased disposition to travel; and too frequently without the companionship which should naturally be secured. A man is often compelled by business to be absent from home for weeks, or even months, to go abroad, and frequently when it would be impossible for him to take his wife with him. Often one must go for health, while it is important that the other should remain at home to look after the common interests. These are misfortunes that cannot be avoided, and must be borne from necessity, not from choice.

But when we see either desiring to roam, "to go a pleasuring" alone, when both cannot go, we wonder at the folly which is laying the foundation for bitter regret in later years. The marriage ceremony is but a mockery if the two who change vows are not expecting to find their chief earthly joys in each other's society. But when they can bring their minds to a separation of weeks or months just for pleasure, we think they will dream of the heartaches they are laying up in store for one another.

Keep together while you can. Death will sever the band, all too soon, or sickness compel absence, full of fear and sad forebodings. It is impossible for a husband and wife to be absent from each other often, even for a few weeks at a time, without finding little changes on their return. Every one has some peculiarities of character and disposition which are not exactly congenial; but if married young, before habits or traits are fixed past change, all these little infelicities are softened or lost in daily communion, and man and wife assimilate, as one mind, if happily mated. But let these separations, even of short duration, once begin, and they soon grow apart. The natural traits and dissimilarities which constant association have held dormant wake up, and are less and less easily lulled to sleep after each separation.

We think women are more injured by this roving than men. The latter are seldom long absent, except on business, with no leisure for pleasure seeking while away; and in their necessarily rapid traveling, the hurry, the annoyance, the loss of creature comforts, which are found in greater perfection at home, are more felt, and usually the comforts and luxuries are more fully appreciated on their return home. In the whirl of business while absent they have little temptation to take up any unusual line of thought or action. But a woman, unless she must go for her health, more frequently travels to have a "good time," throwing aside all cares instead of taking them with her as her husband does. In this freedom she at once enters into a mode of life altogether different from that which a wife, mother or housekeeper can have at home. Her love of nicety and order is less disturbed when she has only herself to care for; and a selfish habit, a feeling of entire independence is easily established, so when she returns home she finds it difficult to take up again what was once a pleasure, but now seems more like the "burden of life." The noise and confusion of children or much company, for the care of which she feels responsible, are far more irksome than before her "pleasure trip." She does not find the yoke so easy nor the burden so light. The habit of being interested in or of sharing one another's cares, reporting little items of daily news when together, is destroyed, and without any intentional unkindness they have learned to turn to others for the amusement or the social intercourse which was once a part of their life.

These are not intentional slights; but the changes which repeated absence most naturally brings. A woman sees the changes much quicker than a man—sees—grieves over them and is made unhappy by them; if she loves her husband, though often too proud to let it be known. If pleasure trips are frequent, or of long duration, these changes are more marked. Husbands and wives who were once made uncomfortable and restless if one meal was passed unshared, learn after awhile by frequent separations to let many pass with but little regret. Separation has lost its former importance in their eyes. Why should it not be so? If death divides them—however true the sorrow—time after awhile must bring healings, and the heart, although there will always be a niche which no one else can occupy, must after many days, turn for comfort and companionship to other, if not better friends. Sometimes, perhaps, in a younger and fairer, the old love is entirely lost sight of.

Let this discontented wife who, after eight years of married life and the care of home and three children, feels that she should be indulged in a vacation and freedom from these responsibilities, ponder well the probable consequences of the step she desires to take in opposition to her husband's wishes. To secure the short lived pleasure of a few months' travel, can she afford to risk the many changes she may expect on her return? Will she be willing to see that her husband has less confidence in her, less desire for her society than formerly; that he has learned there are many comforts to be found outside his home? Is the gratification worth the price she may be called to pay for it?

We have not put this subject in as clear and strong a light as we desired; but if what we have said may have sufficient weight to lead this "Wife" and others who are showing indications of having been affected with the same restless, dissatisfied spirit, to think long and soberly before they decide, we shall be thankful. We do not believe a truehearted, sensible wife, would willingly desert her post or seek any enjoyment in which her family cannot share.

Keep your families unbroken; together share each other's joys and sorrows so far as possible, until death severs the bond. That death compels separations, you will have enough to regret without mourning for the days needlessly spent apart.—Christian Union.

DON'T BE DECEIVED, But for coughs, colds, sore throat, hoarseness, and bronchial difficulties use only

Wells' Carbolic Tablets.

Worthless Imitations are on the market, but the only Scientific preparation of Carbolic Acid for Lung diseases is when chemically combined with other well known remedies, as in these TABLETS, and all parties are cautioned against using any other.

In all cases of irritation of the mucus membrane these TABLETS should be freely used, their cleansing and healing properties are astonishing.

BE WARNED, never neglect a cold, it is easily cured in its incipient state, when it becomes chronic the cure is exceedingly difficult, use Wells' Carbolic Tablets as a specific.

JURUBEBA

BLOOD PURIFIER

It is not a physic which may give temporary relief to the sufferer for the first few doses, but which, from continued use brings Piles and kindred diseases to aid in weakening the invalid, nor is it a doctored liquor, which, under the popular name of "Bitters" is so extensively palmed off on the public as sovereign remedies, but it is a most powerful Tonic and Alterative, pronounced so by the leading medical authorities of London & Paris and has been long used by the regular physicians of other countries with wonderful remedial results.

Dr. WELLS' EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

retains all the medicinal virtues peculiar to the plant and must be taken as a permanent curative.

Is there want of action in your Liver & Spleen? Unless relieved at once, the blood becomes impure by deleterious secretions, producing scrofulous or skin diseases, Blotches, Felons, Pustules, Canker, Pimples, &c.

Take Jurubeba to cleanse purify and restore the vitiated blood to healthy action.

Have you a dyspeptic stomach? Unless digestion is promptly aided the system is debilitated with loss of vital force, Poverty of Blood, Dropsical Tendency, General Weakness or Lassitude.

Take it to assist digestion without reaction; it will impart youthful vigor to the sufferer.

Have you weakness of the Intestines? You are in danger of Chronic Diarrhœa or the dreadful Inflammation of the Bowels.

Take it to allay irritation and ward off tendency to inflammations.

Have you Weakness of the Uterine or Urinary organs? You must procure instant relief or you are liable to suffering worse than death

Take it to strengthen organic weakness or life becomes a burden

Finally it should be frequently taken to keep the system in perfect health or you are otherwise in great danger of malarial, miasmatic or contagious diseases.

DR. RADWAY'S

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

HAS MADE THE MOST ASTONISHING CURES; SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES THE BODY UNDERGOES, UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of Skin diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm, and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney & Bladder Complaints,

Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brickdust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark, billious appearance, and white bone-dust deposits, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins. Price, $1.00.

WORMS.—The only known and sure Remedy for Worms—Pin, Tape, etc.

Tumor of 12 Years' Growth Cured by Radway's Resolvent.

BEVERLY, Mass., July 18, 1869.

DR. RADWAY:—I have had Ovarian Tumor in the ovaries and bowels. All the Doctors said "there was no help for it." I tried every thing that was recommended; but nothing helped me. I saw your Resolvent, and thought I would try it; but had no faith in it, because I had suffered for twelve years. I took six bottles of the Resolvent, and one box of Radway's Pills, and two bottles of your Ready Relief; and there is not a sign of tumor to be seen or felt, and I feel better, smarter, and happier than I have for twelve years. The worst tumor was in the left side of the bowels, over the groin. I write this to you for the benefit of others. You can publish it if you choose. HANNAH P. KNAPP.

CANCER CURED

WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr A. J. PIERCE.

OF PITTSBURGH, PA.

Has proved to the world that Cancer, the most dreaded of all diseases, can be cured without the aid of the knife, and without pain avoiding the dangerous and painful operation of cutting. Every part, its root and fibre, belonging to the Cancer, is

REMOVED FROM THE SYSTEM

by his chemical agents, which can be applied to any part of the person with perfect safety. Dr. Pierce's treatment of

Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Fistula, Piles, Scrofula, Diseases of the Ear, Throat, Catarrh, Lung Affections, and Malignant Ulcers, of all kinds, WITHOUT THE AID OF THE KNIFE, is endorsed by the highest of medical authority.

Wens, Moles, Warts, and Birth Marks

Removed without pain or scar.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I take great pleasure in certifying to Dr. Pierce's extraordinary treatment of disease. I am intimately acquainted with him, have known him for twenty years as a practiced Physician of superior general information, and having traveled much he has had great opportunities of acquiring thorough knowledge of his profession. His wonderful skill in removing Cancers, Tumors, &c., cannot fail to give satisfaction.

A. W. EWING, M. D.

"We have known Dr. A. J. Pierce for a number of years, and have witnessed his wonderful success in the treatment of Cancer and other diseases, some of which of the most malignant form. "We confidently recommend him to all those afflicted with anything of the kind."

THE

SEWING MACHINE.

The Best for All Purposes,

More easily managed, more durable, and runs lighter than any Machine in the market; easily cleaned and kept in order; large bobbins, holds twice as much thread as any other shuttle. Lock-stitch, alike on both sides, self-adjusting tension.

Justly Popular.

From the first the "DOMESTIC" has rapidly increased in popularity, until to day, in the opinion of all experienced Sewing Machine men, it stands forth

UNRIVALLED!

It is gaining favor much faster than any other Machine heretofore presented to the public, which can be seen from its increased sales last year over the preceding, being

OVER FIVE HUNDRED PER CENT.

No Machine is increasing its sales and gaining public favor as rapidly as the Medicinal.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Grateful thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist: There is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases. Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, will be subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS once or twice a week as a Preventive.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is effected.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic and Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

The Aperient and mild Laxative properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are the best safe-guard in all cases of eruptions and malignant fevers, their balsamic, healing, and soothing properties protect the humors of the fauces. Their Sedative properties allay pain in the nervous system, stomach, and bowels, either from inflammation, wind, colic, cramps, etc. Their Counter-Irritant influence extends throughout the system. Their Anti-Bilious properties stimulate the liver, in the secretion of bile, and its discharges through the biliary ducts, and are superior to all remedial agents, for the cure of Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, etc.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed.

Directions.—Take of the Bitters on going to bed at night from a half to one and one-half wine-glassfull. Eat good nourishing food, such as beef-steak, mutton chop, venison, roast beef, and vegetables, and take out-door exercise. They are composed of purely vegetable ingredients, and contain no spirit.

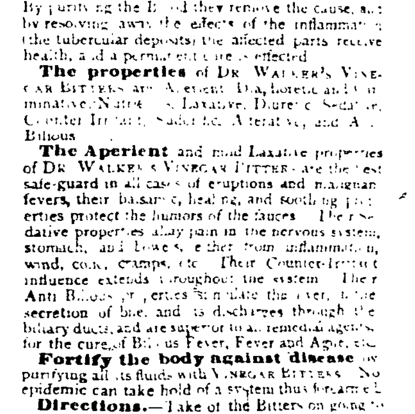
This Cut represents the manner of using

DR. PIERCE'S

Fountain Nasal Injector

OR

DOUCHE



This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY.

It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to these cavities and chambers by any of the ordinary methods. This obstacle in the way of effecting cures is entirely overcome by the invention of the Douche. In using this instrument, the Fluid is carried by its own weight, (no snuffing, forcing or pumping being required,) up one nostril in a full gentle flowing stream to the highest portion of the nasal passages, passes into and thoroughly cleanses all the tubes and chambers connected therewith, and flows out of the opposite nostril. Its use is pleasant, and so simple that a child can understand it. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications.

Symptoms of Catarrh. Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, &c. In others a dryness, dry, watery, weak or inflamed eyes, stopping up or obstruction of nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, &c. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with the constitutional treatment which is recommended in the pamphlet that wraps each bottle of the Remedy, is a perfect specific for this loathsome disease, and the proprietor offers, in good faith, $500 reward for a case he cannot cure. The Remedy is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. The Catarrh Remedy is sold at 50 cents, Douche at 60 cents, by all Druggists, or either will be mailed by the proprietor on receipt of 60 cents.
